PRESIDENT FIXES SEPT. 12 AS 18 TO 45 DRAFT DATE

Registration Date Set by President's Proclamation

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 31.—September 12 was today set by proclamation of President Wilson as the date upon which America's manhood between the ages of 18 and 45 will register under the man-power bill.

The proclamation was issued simultaneously with the signing of the bill, which is designed through the extension of the draft ages to make possible an army of 4,000,000 men in France by mid-Summer next year.

The bill, which passed its final legislative stage yesterday when the Senate agreed to the conference report, was signed today by the presiding officers of the House and Senate and then sent to the White House for the President's signature.

The proclamation setting the registration day, which had been prepared in advance, was then made public.

All those who expect to be away on the day of registration, the proclamation points out, may register by mail, provided the registration letter reaches the local board no later than the day mentioned—September 12—and should apply to local boards now for instructions.

Those who are at sea or outside of continental United States must register within five days after their return to this country.

THE PROCLAMATION.

"Fifteen months ago the men of the country from twenty-one to thirty years of age, were registered," reads the President's proclamation. "Three months ago those who had reached the age of twenty-one were added. It now remains to include all the men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.

"This is not a new policy. A century and a quarter ago it was deliberately ordained by those who were then responsible for the safety and defence of the nation, that the duty of military service should rest upon the able-bodied men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.

"We now accept and fulfill the obligations which they established, an obligation expressed in our national statute from that time until now. We solemnly purpose a decisive victory of arms and deliberately to devote the larger part of the military man power of the nation to the accomplishment of that purpose.

PRAISES SPIRIT OF YOUTH.

"The younger have been from the first ready to go. They have furnished voluntary enlistments out of all proportion to their numbers. Our military authorities regard them as having the highest combatant qualities. Their youthful enthusiasm, their virile eagerness, their gallant spirit of daring make them the admiration of all who see them in action.

"They could not only the distinction of serving in this great war, but also the inspiring memories which hundreds of thousands of them will cherish through the years to come, of a great day and a great service for their country and for mankind."

"To the men of the older group now called upon, the opportunity now opened to them will be accepted with the calm resolution of those who

REPORTS U-BOAT AT MONTAUK POINT

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 31.—Captain William R. Jeffrey reported having sighted the periscope of a German submarine inside Montauk Point between two islands upon landing here. He says he is familiar with the construction of United States submarines and is positive it was not one of them.

ANOTHER SPANISH SHIP SUNK

American Cargo Carrier Cudahy Victim of Double Attack by Submarines

By International News Service.

Madrid, Aug. 31. — The Spanish steamer Alexandrine has been torpedoed and sunk.

The sinking of the steamer Alexandrine occurs at a critical time in the controversy between Spain and Germany over the activities of the latter's U-boats. The Spanish Cabinet has been holding special conferences as a result of the recent sinking of the Spanish steamship Carasa. The likelihood of a break in relations between Spain and Germany seems enhanced by this latest sinking.

Washington, Aug. 31. — Twenty-two members of the naval armed guard of the United States cargo steamship Joseph Cudahy, torpedoed 700 miles off the English Coast on August 17 are missing, the Navy Department announced this afternoon. Sixty-two members of the crew also are unaccounted for.

Two members of the naval armed guard and thirteen members of the crew are known to have been rescued, the Navy Department stated.

The captain reported that two submarines figured in the attack. Two torpedoes struck the vessel, one hitting the fuel tank and the other the engine room. The captain of the vessel was taken aboard one of the submarines and questioned by the Germans. The names of the civilian members of the crews have not yet been received by the department.

Boston Tug Boat, Attacked, Escapes Submarine Raider Off the Coast

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 31.—A Boston tug was fired upon and chased by a German submarine a few miles off the New Hampshire coast, members of the crew reported on landing here. An emergency fleet steamship, making her first voyage, was warned by the tugboat crew and made her escape from the same submarine.

Quincy Men Go to Camp.

Twelve men were sent by the exemption board of Quincy to Camp Upton, N. Y., Nine were Quincy men. Frank S. Hussey of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., William C. Peterson of Brockton and Joseph A. W. Schneider of Portland, Me., were also sent.

Destroyer Thatcher Is Launched at Fore River

The Thatcher, a torpedo boat destroyer, was launched today at the Fore River shipyards in Quincy. Miss Doris Bentley was sponsor. It is the second destroyer to be launched within a week, the Palmer taking the water last Sunday.

The new destroyer is named after Rear Admiral Henry Knox Thatcher, who died in Boston in April, 1840. He made a brilliant record during the Civil War.

On Labor Day the tank steamer W. L. Stead is to be launched at the Quincy yards. She was originally contracted for by the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company. Mrs. Paul Harwood of New York, wife of the vice-president of the company, is to christen her.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN TO LOCAL DRAFT BOARDS

"Speed Up!" Is the Slogan Sounded by Adjutant-General Stevens

Instructions to local draft boards to speed up the preliminary plans for the new registrations were issued by Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens today under an order from Provost Marshal-General Crowder.

The significant feature of the order is the assumption that the questionaire period may begin as early as Monday, September 16.

In his instructions to begin the preliminary work, Provost Marshal-General Crowder says the legal advisory committee of the State, or other agencies, shall take such steps as may be necessary to assure the efficient and complete personnel to be ready to repeat the registration work they did during the first questionnaire and classification period.

Colonel Stevens says there will be one and one-third as many registrants to be advised as during December and January last, and that the questionnaire period may begin as early as Monday, September 16.

SPAIN AWAITS STORY OF U-BOAT SURVIVORS

By Agence Radio to the International News Service.

Madrid, Aug. 31.—The Spanish government today officially announced that it had instructed the Spanish consul at Cardiff to forward immediately the stories of the survivors of the Spanish ship Carasa, sunk by a German submarine with a loss of sixteen lives. The announcement stated that the Cabinet had heard the Secretary of State's account of the torpedoing. A rigorous censorship has been established.

Pershing's Men Now Open Way for Attack on Juvigny From Three Sides

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the Aisne-Vesle Front, Aug. 30 (night).—American troops late today stormed Chavigny, on the French right, and succeeded in opening up the road through Bois de Couronne, which exposes Juvigny to American attack from three sides.

Air observers report there is every evidence that the enemy is preparing to retreat following his defeats between the Ailette and Aisne, in spite of the fact that twelve fresh German divisions were rushed up to oppose the Franco-American forces.

Before the Americans launched their drive this afternoon there had been no infantry activity since yesterday when the Germans were cut to pieces in five massed attacks. The enemy debouched from Bois de Couronne, with orders to fight to the

TELEPHONE PROFITS $9,532,332 IN MONTH

Washington, Aug. 31.—Uncle Sam has been investigating the earnings of the telephone companies and found that they have gathered in a net revenue for March, 1918, of $9,532,332. The gross revenue was $27,921,462 for that month, while the expenses were $18,389,130, it was announced today. This is an increase of net revenue over that for March, 1917, when the gross revenue was $25,352,079, the expenses $17,462,689, and the net revenue $8,489,877.

For three months ending March, 1918, the gross revenue was $82,078,706, the expenses $56,657,776, and the net revenue $25,412,930. For the same period in 1917 the gross revenue was $76,342,939, the expenses $50,545,214, and the net revenue $25,793,621.

Yankees and French Smash Foe on the Ailette

London, Aug. 31 (1:35 p. m.)—French troops have advanced east from the Ailette to the outskirts of woods one-half mile from Coucy le Chateau, the International News Service learned here this afternoon. (Americans are fighting with the French in this sector. Earlier advices told of the Germans fighting desperately to hold Coucy le Chateau. If they lose the city, it is believed they will be forced to abandon their line along the Vesle.)

The British forces today continued to smash eastward from Clery-sur-Somme in the concerted movement to surround Peronne, which is hourly becoming more untenable for the enemy. Australian troops, which are driving forward in this region, have taken numerous enemy positions, prisoners and machine guns and have succeeded in bringing the battle line into closer alignment with the British front south of Peronne.

YANKEE AIRMAN, PRISONER OF FOE, ESCAPES

Hitchcock Leaps From Train and Walks 80 Miles to Swiss Border

Concord, N. H., Aug. 31.—News of the escape of Lieutenant Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., member of the Lafayette Flying Squadron, from a German prison camp to Berne was received with enthusiasm at St. Paul's School where he was a student up to the time of his enlistment.

Hitchcock, who is widely known as a horseman and polo player, is only eighteen and although he passed the "180 hours' endurance test of the American flying forces, he was rejected on account of his youth. He went to France in June, 1917, and was assigned to the famous Lafayette escadrille.

He was captured in March after a combat with three enemy planes. Wounded, he was taken to a German prison camp, from which he escaped by jumping from a train and walking eighty miles to the Swiss border while being transferred from one camp to another. Lieutenant Hitchcock has received the Croix de Guerre with two palms and prize money awarded by the squadron.

WILL CALL MEN OF 18 AT ONCE

General March Tells Plans for Army of 4,000,000—500,000 Still to Be Trained Abroad

Washington, Aug. 31.—One million American soldiers now in France have completed their training, and are ready at any time to go into battle. General March, chief of staff, made this announcement today. This means that about 500,000 Americans in France are still under training.

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Under a tentative plan adopted by the War Department, all men of 18 years made liable to military service under the new man-power bill will be drafted for training as soon as possible after their registration.

Nothing has been permanently or definitely decided, General March made clear. The tentative plan provides, however, that after drafting the 18-year-old men, large numbers will be specially selected for technical training at schools and colleges. This does not mean that they will be exempted from military service even temporarily. When their time comes they will be called just as though they had not been selected for special training.

Practically all American units that have been brigaded with the French and the British have been withdrawn and placed under command of General Pershing. General March told the committee today.

While General March did not advance any reasons for this move, it

PRESIDENT FIXES DRAFT DATE SEPT. 12

Washington, Aug. 31—September 12 was today set by proclamation of President Wilson as the date upon which America's manhood between the ages of 18 and 45 will register under the man power bill. The proclamation was issued simultaneously with the signing of the bill, which is designed through the extension of the draft ages to make possible an army of 4,000,000 men in France by mid-Summer next year.

BAILLEUL CAPTURED AS THE BRITISH PUSH DRIVE IN FLANDERS

FRENCH IN BIG GUN DUEL WITH ENEMY NORTH OF NOYON

The British also are continuing their efforts in the face of most stubborn resistance to roll back the northern end of the enemy line in the vicinity of the Arras-Cambrai road. Success in this movement means either the flanking or forcing back of the enemy forces from the Bullecourt pivot, about which bloody battles raged in 1917.

The British official report tells of the capture of an important strong point, St. Servin's farm, and of the village of Eterpigny, just north of the Arras-Cambrai road and on the east bank of the Sensee River.

This success, in a way, recompenses them for the ground they were forced to give yesterday in the vicinity of Bullecourt and Hendicourt.

The British are giving the Germans no rest, but are bringing pressure to bear on a wide front. This is proven by the official news from the Lys front in Flanders, where the British have advanced to Dacoutre and the line of the Lawe River from Vielle Chapelle to Lestrem, both of which villages have been captured.

While the official report states that progress also has been made north of Kemmel Hill, unofficial advices declare that Kemmel Hill also has been taken.

On the French front a fierce artillery battle is raging along the Canal du Nord, north of Noyon. There General Humbert is driving in around the north of Bois d'Autrecourt.

THREATEN TO FLANK FOE.

Further south General Mangin is driving around the southern end of Bois d'Autrecourt from Morlincourt. Advance guards are advancing east of Nesle, clearing out machine gun nests. These two combined movements, and especially that of General Mangin, threatens the left flank of the entire present position of the German armies.

France-American forces are now assisting the Chavigny-Juvigny region north of Soissons. Unofficial advices report that the Germans are ready to retreat, despite the fact that they have thrown in two additional divisions to check the American troops alone, and ten others to combat the French in the general battle.

CONSPICUOUS BRAVERY.

Late details of the American activities during the past few days reveal the fact that they have shown conspicuous bravery. On one occasion they shattered a fierce massed German attacks, literally blowing to pieces the waves of gray-clad Prussians.

Artillery Operation Is Feature of the Fighting on the French Front

Paris, Aug. 31 (Noon)—Heavy artillery operations along the Canal du Nord, north of Noyon and between the Ailette and the Aisne, were the features of the fighting on the French front during the night, the War Office announced today.

The text of the official communique follows:

"During the night there was lively artillery fighting in the region of the Canal du Nord, north of Noyon, and between the Ailette and the Aisne. German surprise attacks, attempted in the Champagne, were without result."

French Press Forward, Plan Trapping Foe at Bois d'Autricourt

By JOHN McHUGH STUART.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 31 (10 a. m.)—French troops are pressing forward today in a movement destined to surround Bois d'Autricourt, the strategic hilltop northeast of Noyon, which are positively defended by the Germans, but from which there are fine roads of retreat. Bois d'Autricourt is just east of the Canal du Nord and is considered the real strong point of the enemy's Noyon salient.

On the north General Humbert is smashing above Bois d'Autricourt from Roucraine. On the south General Mangin is completing the movement from Morlincourt. Noyon itself is a city blanketed rain.

French zouaves and Tirailleurs are fighting east of Nesle and wiping out German machine gun nests with the bayonet.

Meanwhile the pressure toward Ham, astride the Somme, continues unabated, and the British are steadily entering Peronne.

Both forces are meeting with some difficulties in transporting men across the Canal du Nord and the Somme River.

That the Germans fully realize the menace to the Hindenburg line is proven by the desperate counter-attacks which have been hurled at the France - American troops in the Juvigny region.

General Mangin's feat of crossing the river at Morlincourt, is the most important blow at the German defence. The Reitern Canal, from Morlincourt to Chauny alone protects the entire left flank of the present German line.

Whether the Germans will be able to spend the Winter on the old Hindenburg line depends entirely upon the result of General Mangin's success between Morlincourt and Chauny and the success of the British in the vicinity of Quesnel.

British Continue to Gain: Bailleul and Eterpigny Taken

London, Aug. 31 (12:24 p. m.)—Australian troops "plunged into the enemy line east of Clery-sur-Somme during the night and captured a number of prisoners and machine guns, the War Office announced today.

British troops are continuing their progress along the Arras-Cambrai road. Late yesterday they succeeded in capturing the village of Eterpigny, north of the road, and the St. Servin farm.

The text of the official statement follows:

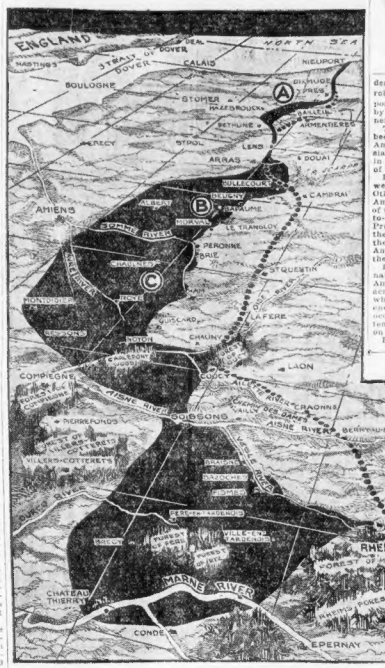
"Our advance in this locality is continuing.

"Yesterday afternoon English troops carried out a successful operation north of the Arras-Cambrai road, capturing an important strong point known as the St. Servin farm and the village of Eterpigny, on the east bank of the Sensee River.

"On the Lys front our troops hold Dacoutre and the line of the Lawe River from Vielle Chapelle to Lestrem, both of which villages are in our hands. We are approaching Doulieu and have gained Bailleul station and the hill to the east of it known as Mont de Lille.

"Our troops have entered Dranoutre and have gained ground north of Kemmel Hill."

FOLLOW DRIVES OF ALLIES ON THIS MAP EACH DAY



The area of the German retreat is widening daily and has now set in on the Flanders front, where the enemy troops evacuated the important town of Bailleul, without any direct pressure being applied by the Allied forces. This means that the British and French attacks in Picardy have bitten far more deeply into the vital defences of Hindenburg and Ludendorff than is admitted in the Berlin official reports, or even claimed in unofficial dispatches from the various fronts. In the opinion of some critics, it marks the beginning of a movement which, if Foch continues his pressure, will result in the cleaning out of the Kaiser's forces from France before Winter. The more important gains of the Allies are shown at A, where the Germans began their retirement in Flanders; at B, where Canadian and New Zealand troops are continuing their enveloping movement near Peronne, and, at C, where all enemy forces have been cleared from the district south and west of the Somme River.

YANKEES BOMB RAILWAYS AND SUPPLY BASE

death. Five times the gray waves rolled en masse toward the American positions. Every attack was repulsed by American artillery, machine gunners, infantry and tanks.

Two new German divisions have been identified directly in front of the American unit. The Seventh Prussian Guards already had been thrown in to support the original opponents of the Americans.

Part of the Prussian reinforcements were concentrated against Juvigny. Others were massed about Chavigny. American patrol captured a number of the former after the bitterest hand-to-hand fighting. From Chavigny the Prussian machine gunners enfiladed the American positions and swept them with a withering fire until the American field batteries turned on the enemy and smothered him.

In capturing the Chavigny-Juvigny narrow gauge railway line, the Americans were forced to sprint across 300 yards of bare, open plateau while they were raked by the fire of the enemy. After this heroic dash they occupied a small embankment and ten feet from the Germans, who were on the other side.

Both the Germans and Americans

Yankees Bomb Railways and Supply Base and Disable Fighting Fokker

By NEWTON C. PARKE.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, Aug. 31—Squadron C, thirty American bombing planes carried out three successful raids behind the enemy's front yesterday. The railway yards at Conflans was a target for bombs early in the day, several direct hits being observed in the network of tracks.

Eight more bombs were rained on Longuyon, another railway and supply base on the Verdun sector and late yesterday evening a second raid was made on Conflans. Poor visibility interfered somewhat with observing the exact results of the last attack. All the American bombers returned without injury.

There also was aerial activity on the Lorraine front. Four American pursuits engaged a Fokker fighting plane in the region of Manonville, southwest of Pont-a-Mousson. Lieut. Armitage swept up close to the hostile and fired 250 rounds at short range. A big flash suddenly burst from the Fokker. It began to fall, but apparently the pilot partially regained control and the machine slid over the Germans trenches as an elevator of only 100 feet, landing or falling just behind the German line.

Confirmation of the destruction of the Fokker has not yet been obtained.

was regarded as significant by members of the committee and one which may presage important developments. Besides showing the rapidity with which the Americans have developed into finished fighting men.

Beyond stating that the number of troops in France now exceeds the million and one half mark, General March gave no figures on overseas movements of soldiers, members of the committee said.

1,600,000 FIGHTERS READY.

He emphasized, however, that General Pershing now has a million trained men capable of being thrown into battle. This would indicate that there are now overseas about a half million men whose training has not yet been completed.

The "pushing back" movement will be continued, in the belief of General March. It is in this kind of fighting that the great American army has been especially trained, great emphasis having been placed on individual marksmanship and "hand-to-hand" combat.

Army officers aboard, said the Chief of staff, recognize that American soldiers are superior to all others in "open" fighting, and they will still further prove their worth in the continued "pushing back" movement where they will have plenty of opportunity to engage the enemy at close quarters.

ONLY FOCH KNOWS.

Any report that the American plan of campaign is based upon a mobilization in the East is a matter of pure speculation, General March told the committee.

No one on this side of the Atlantic knows what the plan is, and one guess is as good as another, he asserted. Only Marshal Foch knows what the American campaign is, he declared.

Production and shipment of airplanes have been proceeding satisfactorily, General March said. He said that during the past week no less than 1,000 of the modified De Haviland fours had been delivered by the factories and that of these 765 either had been already shipped or were on the piers ready to be sent overseas.

Americans Repulse Foe Raiding Party in Vosges Mountains

Washington, Aug. 31.—The War Department has made public the following communique from General Pershing covering operations of the American expeditionary force:

"Section A—In the Vosges a strong raiding party advanced under cover of artillery fire to our lines and was driven back without securing any results. Aside from artillery fighting in this region, there is nothing else to report.

"The railroad yards at Harrincourt and Conflans were effectively bombed by our aviators. All of our machines have returned.

FIGHT OVER GUARDIANSHIP OF HEIRESS REVEALS ROMANCE

GIRL NOW INMATE OF ASYLUM

Uncle Seeks Guardianship of Dorothy Gordon, Who Inherited $100,000

A contest is about to be started in the Probate Court of Middlesex County for the guardianship of eighteen-year-old Dorothy Gordon, heiress to an estate of over $100,000, and now an inmate of the McLean Hospital at Waverley, to which she was committed some three years ago.

Nineteen years ago Miss Elizabeth A. Gardiner, then an attractive young woman, seventeen years old, sought and secured a position as bookkeeper in the establishment of P. D. Gordon, a wealthy Boston business man. Mr. Gordon at the time had an aged wife.

The acquaintance between the employer, who, it is stated, was forty-five years old, and his bookkeeper ripened into love, and later a child was born. This was in January, 1900. The child was christened Dorothy Gordon.

For thirteen years the couple lived in various places in Boston. Upon the death of Mr. Gordon's wife, it is said, he married Miss Gardiner. Shortly afterwards he died and left his estate, by will, to his wife and child. The proceeds of a 10,000 life insurance policy were left to the daughter exclusively.

Another act in the drama occured at Nantasket Beach, August 30, 1915, when the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Gardiner Gordon was found lifeless in one of the streets.

An investigation was made by the authorities and the official announcement was that the woman had met her death by falling from an automobile.

Shortly afterwards an application was made to have William F. Jardine appointed as guardian of the motherless girl, Dorothy.

The petition was opposed by John D. Gardiner, a brother of the deceased woman, but, after an extended hearing, Mr. Jardine was given the appointment as guardian.

GARDINER IN BOSTON.

Mr. Gardiner, whose home is at No. 2 Cottage place, Baldwin, Long Island, N. Y., and who claims to be president of the Baldwin Country Club, chief of the Baldwin Fire Department, a member of the police force of Baldwin and a deputy sheriff of Nassau County, is now in Boston and is said to be attempting to have the guardianship decree of the court which appointed Mr. Jardine set aside and himself appointed.

Mr. Gardiner alleges that at the previous court hearing Dorothy testified, through fear, that she wished to have Mr. Jardine appointed as her guardian, and claims that as her nearest living relative he should be given an opportunity to care for the girl and provide her with a home.

RAILS AND U. S. STEEL ARE MARKET LEADERS

United States Steel and the rails were leaders in a dull and narrow market today. Opening near last night's close prices advanced slowly.

Gaining 1¾ to 2¾ points, United States Steel rose 1¼ to 111¾. Bethlehem B gained ½, at 85¼; Republic, ¾, at 92¾; Crucible ¼, at 68, and Midvale ¼, at 53¾.

Southern Railway was conspicuous by strong, rising 1¾ to 26¾. Navy Haven sold 4¾, up ¾; New York Central 74½, up ½; Reading 90¾, up ¾; Union Pacific 129, up ¾; Canadian Pacific 161¾, up 1.

Coppers were inactive. Anaconda advanced ¼ to 64¼, and Inspiration ¼ to 53½.

Among stocks to show fractional gains were Marine preferred, 103¼; Mexican, 70; Steel Foundries, 75¾; Sugar, 120; Steel, 119¾; Baldwin Loc., 130¾, and Westinghouse, 43¾. Pierce Oil was unchanged at 17¾. Texas Pacific lost ¼, at 48¾; Missouri Pacific, 24¾, and Southern Pacific, 87¾, a point each.

To the Boston Exchange activity was confined to a few stocks. Gorton, New, after losing ¾, regained its loss, at 25¾. Booth Fisheries gained ¾, and lost it at 27¾. Fairbanks Co. at 54¾, off ¾. Swift & Company sold unchanged at 99¾.

On odd lots, United Fruit was up ¼ at 130¾, and Mohawk off 1 at 76. United Shoe at 48¾, and Boston Elevated 70¾ were unchanged. East Butte sold 10, up ¼.

MIDDLESEX LINE WANTS TO RUN JITNEYS

A strike, like politics, makes strange bedfellows.

Here's the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company seeking permission to run jitneys on account of the strike of its employes.

This is the first instance, so far as known, of any Massachusetts trolley line making love, so to speak, to its old enemy, the jitney bus.

Trolley managements have fought the jitney up hill and down dale, but finding they can't lick them out of business on account of ruinous competition.

Since the strike started on the Middlesex & Boston system jitney lines have started. Wellesley to Boston, a line of competing buses, seems to figure that, if the strike is a prolonged affair, the management of the company might as well get into the game.

MORTON UNDER NEW LAW.

George M. Cox, general manager for the company, filed the petition with the Public Service Commission, asking that the Middlesex & Boston be granted permission to acquire, own and operate motor vehicles (meaning jitneys) in all the cities and towns wherein the trolley system operates.

The petition states, and Mr. Cox reiterates, that public necessity requires that motor vehicles be used for transportation of our passengers."

The petition was filed under the law passed by the last Legislature, as part of its sweeping program of trolley legislation.

The Public Service Commission was scheduled to take prompt action on the petition.

Meanwhile the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration conferred today with representatives of the Middlesex & Boston line and of the strikers, when the employes of the road struck for more pay. The situation was described as "quiet" at the company's offices.

The only lines operating today on part schedule were those running from Waltham to Watertown and Newton, the South Framingham line to Newton and the Natick crosstown line. A car or two was run from Hopkinton to Weston and between Arlington and Lexington. Office help and inspectors are manning the cars.

ARMY TRAINING CORPS AT BOSTON COLLEGE

Boston College will have a fully equipped Students Army Training Corps for students eighteen and over who attend college this Fall, according to announcement by the president, Rev. C. W. Lyons, S. J. Students have been notified to inform their local boards upon registering that they belong to this corps. Students upon registering on August 24 are urged to apply for certificate of deferred rating in the corps and submit it to their local boards before filling out their questionnaire.

TRAVELS 7,000 MILES AND SPENDS $600 TO ENLIST

Racine, Wis., Aug. 31.—After traveling 7,000 miles and spending $600 to make the trip, Frank J. Kaiser has arrived here from Chile and expects to leave soon for one of the military camps. He has two brothers already in the service and both of them are now "over there."

EXTEND SCHOOL VACATIONS TO SAVE CROPS

An appeal by Henry B. Endicott, Food Administrator, to school officials to extend the vacation term of school boys in an effort to prevent waste of crops now about to be harvested, has brought the recommendation by Payson Smith, commissioner of education, that as many schools as possible permit high school help to remain out until October 12.

Mr. Smith's plan is upon the condition that they make up any work they have missed up to this date. The schools would open upon their regular dates, but the boys able to do farm work would be allowed to postpone their attendance until October 12.

Mr. Endicott says the needs of saving every bit of food raised is very vital to assisting in the war.

MR. ENDICOTT'S APPEAL.

Mr. Endicott's letter to the Board of Education follows:

"With the increasing demand for labor of all kinds, the scarcity of farm labor is becoming acute. It is necessary, therefore, to take every precaution in order that the crops in Massachusetts may be safely harvested this Fall.

"While there are some sections of the State where the need of farm labor is greater than in others, the need is very general and real throughout the whole State.

"The necessity of creating storage reserves of vital food staples that we may meet the needs of the allies of this country has been emphasized by the food administration. And under present conditions it would be wrong to allow any crops, into which so much labor has been put, to go to waste through a lack of effort on the part of this State.

"If there is any way in which the school schedule can be modified, especially by an extension of the work among schoolboys for farm service, the need now that it will be of real service to the State and Nation."

DR. SMITH'S VIEWS.

In presenting the question to the local superintendents, Dr. Smith says:

"As you will see from the letter of Mr. Endicott, a vertical conditions with reference to the harvesting of crops in the State threaten. I have assured Mr. Endicott that the school officials of the State will be ready to render any service of which it will be inconsistent with the educational interests of the youth.

"It is clearly not practicable to defer generally the opening of the schools, but it appears that the school officials can excuse from school attendance pupils of compulsory school age.

"In a very limited number of towns where the situation is especially critical, school may be opened for a short while temporarily to conduct sessions for the upper elementary or grammar grades according to the one-session plan in order that the pupils may be released to help harvest the crops during the greater part of the afternoon.

EXPERT HIGH SCHOOL BOYS.

"Probably the best method generally of rendering the assistance needed may be found in a wider extension of the plan already in operation by which high school boys in good standing, employed on farms during the present Summer, are to be allowed to return to school by October 12, with provisions for making up school work missed. The committee on school boys for farm service of the Public Safety Committee has well organized plans for carrying on this work.

"In high schools likely to be able to furnish students for this service it would seem advisable to present the work of the Fall term so that the term to properly qualified pupils not already employed in the service on farms, and to have such pupils enroll with the enrollment officer in charge of farm service.

HOLLIS ASKS TO BE FREED FROM PAYING WIFE

Concord, N. H., Aug. 31.—United States Senator Henry F. Hollis in a document filed in Superior Court here asks to be relieved from making any further payments to his wife, Mrs. Grace B. Hollis of New York, stating that his expenses are more than his income. He says he is now engaged in war work in France.

The senator sheds a great light on one of the mysteries of New Hampshire politics by stating in his plea, "I can no longer afford to be a Senator." He has refused for several months to run for re-election next Fall, greatly to the surprise of his friends in the State.

Mrs. Hollis was awarded $200 a month as alimony for separate maintenance in 1916. The Senator declares that he is now only making enough for her own support and that his son and daughter are both over 21 years of age. He declares that he is paying his own expenses and that for some time past these have been more than his income. His law practice has declined to about $2,000, he says.

The Senator's son, Henry French Hollis, is a lieutenant in the army aviation corps. Senator Hollis's wife was formerly Miss Grace Brierton Fisher of Concord, Mass.

PHYSICAL TESTS FOR WAR WORKERS

Washington, Aug. 31.—The War Labor Policies Board has approved the physical examination of workers, the Department of Labor announced today. But because of the demands of war on the doctors of the country has recommended that the plan be adopted only in those industrial centres in which tests prove it to be practicable at this time.

PLAN HONOR TO DEAD HEROES AND MOTHERS

Heroes' Day, the day when Boston will pay tribute to its dead heroes in France and honor their mothers with patriotic and fitting exercises, will undoubtedly be held on Boston Common or in some other appropriate place following the return to the city of Mayor Andrew J. Peters.

Similar big cities of the country are already holding such celebrations, and Boston only wants the official sanction of Mayor Peters to start on its way.

The suggestion for such an observance was made by the Boston AMERICAN in an editorial several days ago and already the idea has taken hold to such an extent that dozens of the best known people in the city have called up the office of the AMERICAN or come in with the one question, "How can I help out in making Heroes' Day successful?"

NO LACK OF MONEY.

There will be no lack of assistance, money or workers when the Mayor, if he be fit to do so, issues the proclamation which will make the date official for the celebration.

A committee of broad-minded citizens will be formed by the Mayor in ten minutes out of the dozens who will be volunteered to carry out the program.

Among the suggestions which have come to the Boston AMERICAN office for details of the program, the principal one is that the mothers of fighting heroes should receive at the hands of the city some signal mark of distinction which would set them apart as having given their all to the cause of liberty.

In New York city small silver pins with a gold star on a sacrificial altar will be presented to mothers of New York's dead, and this plan might be followed out in Boston.

It is also suggested that a monster demonstration of the people in Boston Common would be an appropriate way to honor the dead, with speeches by prominent men of the State, city, church, army, navy and U. S. A. R.

FAVORS SHOWER OF FLOWERS.

The suggestion that every citizen carry a flower and place it on a mound on the Common with the rest is hailed as a beautiful one by many.

JAMES J. PHELAN, Assistant Food Administrator: It is right and proper that we should show our heroes every honor and respect within our power. The most fitting is have a Heroes' Day. On that day let there be held appropriate church services, where both the dead and the living have met, and where we may in union again ask our Heavenly Father that the causes of peace may be quickly won. Let every flag pole fly Old Glory in honor of our brave and courageous soldier and sailor boys.

MICHAEL H. CROWLEY, superintendent of the Boston Police Department: It is a splendid thing, and it strikes the chord at the opportune time. It is our duty to memorialize the boys who have given to their death for the cause of their country and the rights and towns wherein the trolley system operates.

The petition states, and Mr. Cox reiterates, that public necessity requires that motor vehicles be used for transportation of our passengers."

The petition was filed under the law passed by the last Legislature, as part of its sweeping program of trolley legislation.

The Public Service Commission was scheduled to take prompt action on the petition.

Meanwhile the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration conferred today with representatives of the Middlesex & Boston line and of the strikers, when the employes of the road struck for more pay. The situation was described as "quiet" at the company's offices.

RICH CLUBMAN SLAIN; GIRL'S FATHER ACCUSED

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Mystery surrounds the death of William E. Bradway, wealthy clubman and president of the Universal Supply Company, divorced husband of Charlotte May Shedd Bradway, and Frank J. and Smith, famous as the discoverer of Goldfield and its gold mines in 1905. He died in the hospital at Michael Reese Hospital from stab wounds received Thursday night while going to his home.

Police and relatives refuse to discuss circumstances of the case, but only from official police records could any information be obtained. The record reads:

"William E. Bradway was taken to the hospital at midnight. Thursday stabbed over the heart by J. Norman Smith, 27 Leland street."

A detective assigned to the case said that Bradway had regained consciousness only a brief interval during which he made this statement:

"J. Norman Smith, father of the 19-year-old girl I met in Kansas City two years ago, stabbed me as I started to enter my home. I was alone in my traveling man. You may find him at No. 27 E. Leland street."

The police refused to state whether or not they had Cook in custody.

HERO DAY MEDALS TO MOTHERS OF SOLDIERS

New York, Aug. 31.—Silver service medals bearing gold stars will be presented by the city to one half of New York to many mothers of New York boys who have fallen on battlefields in France, at the Heroes' Day exercises tomorrow night at the Hippodrome. Representatives of the allied embassies in Washington and of the army and navy will be present. A company of Pershing's men, invalided home, will hold a place of honor. Other notable guests will be a group of veteran airmen of the Italian Flying Corps and the Lusitania Paraguayan and Nicaraguan commissions.

RADIO ATHLETES PREPARE FOR TRACK MEET

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Aug. 30.—The Radio sailors today are preparing for the athletic contest that is to take place on Soldiers' Field on September 7.

Under the direction of Ensign Cronin, athletic officer of the school, tryouts were held in the different events that are to be a feature of the coming contest.

Today Captain Nat P. Ayer, commanding officer of the school, and his staff, left headquarters and made a thorough inspection of all of the school buildings.

They also gave the sailors and all of their belongings a thorough looking over. After the inspection was over all but a few of the boys were granted leave to go "ashore" and remain there to enjoy themselves until Tuesday.

In accordance with the orders of Secretary of the Navy Daniels all of the ordinary activities of the school will be suspended Labor Day.

Only a few schools have claimed, leads all of the naval stations of the country in the enlistment of its men for the sailors' berth. At the slick bay in Westboro Hall is one of the best equipped dental hospitals in the country, under the direction of Dr. Lacy, lieutenant of the school's medical officer, Dr. John W. Hammond.

The members of the school's baseball nine put in a lot of time and hard work today preparing for the game that is to take place Sunday with the nine Boston base fakirs. The rivalry between the two stations is keen, and a lively contest is anticipated.

realize to the full the deep and solemn significance of what they are doing.

Having made a place for themselves in their respective communities, having assumed at home the graver responsibilities of life in many spheres, looking back upon honorable records in civil and industrial life, they will realize perhaps as no others could, how entirely their own fortunes and the fortunes of all whom they love are put at stake in this war for right, and will know the very records they have made, render this new duty the commanding duty of their lives.

They know how surely this is the nation's war, how imperatively it demands the undivided attention and mastery of all our resources of every kind. They will regard the day as a day of supreme call or their day and will answer it accordingly.

FINAL LOYALTY TEST.

"Only a portion of those who register will be called upon to bear arms. Those who are not physically fit will be excused; those exempted by alien treaty to be excused; those who should not be relieved of their present responsibilities above all, those who cannot be spared from the civil and industrial tasks at home upon which the successful prosecution of the war depends as much as upon the fighting at the front. But all must know that they are under the call of the nation, and must be ready for the selection for military service may be made intelligently and with full information.

"This will be our final demonstration of loyalty, democracy and the will to win—our solemn notice to all the world that we are absolutely united together in a common resolution and purpose. It is the call to duty to which every true man in the country will respond with pride and with the solemn conviction that in doing so he plays his part in vindication of a great cause at whose summons every true heart offers its supreme service.

CARDINAL ORDERS TRANSFER OF PRIESTS

Cardinal O'Connell has made the following transfers of priests to take effect next Tuesday:

The Rev. J. L. M. Levesque is transferred from St. Joseph's Church, Newburyport, to St. Anne's Church, Salem, succeeding the Rev. Peter A. Peller, D. D., who has been granted a leave of absence.

The Rev. Henry L. Scott, St. John the Evangelist's Church, North Chelmsford, has been appointed administrator of St. Aloysius' Church, Newburyport.

The Rev. J. Emile Dupont St. Anne's Church, Salem, has been transferred to St. John the Evangelist Church, North Chelmsford, to succeed the Rev. Henry L. Scott.

FLINGS $1,000 AT HUSBAND IN COURT

New York, Aug. 31.—"Take your old money and keep it!" said Mrs. Mc-Intyre to her husband, Alexander McIntyre, as she threw a wallet containing $1,000 in bills at him in the office of Magistrate Mancuso in Yorkville Court. Mrs. McIntyre said she did not care to have her husband around the house any more, as he made things unpleasant. McIntyre said the money represented his life savings, which had been on deposit in the Bowery Savings Bank, and which he signed over a few days ago to his wife to soothe domestic relations. He agreed to stay away from home. The court ordered the money placed on deposit in his name again.

Chinese Girl Eager to Enlist in the Marine Corps

Miss Mabel C. Fong of No. 18 Harrison avenue, an eighteen-year-old young Chinese woman, wants to enlist in the Marine Corps, as the result of hearing about so many American women who are trying to enlist.

Captain Bernard J. Doherty, recruiting officer, told her she would be accepted if she proved equal to the examination.

Miss Fong is a very attractive young woman and has been educated in Boston schools.

When asked why she wanted to get into the Marine Corps, she replied: "I've understood that women were wanted in that war service. I'm a true American though my parents came from China. I just want to do something for my country at this time."

Even Money Bet on Weather for Labor Day

If it is hard for a lay person to understand scientific jargon it is equally hard for a scientific sharp to talk United States in a mere human. This is apparent when a reported tries to get of Mr. Hubbard of the AMERICAN staff today, "what have you on the weather for Labor Day?"

"There is an area of low pressure now extending from the Gulf of Mexico to Hudson Bay," answered the Weatherman.

"Now, I know, but what's the American of that? Do we wear flannel trousers on Monday or shall we take to the tall hat at the slant at the rainmeter and play 'Hail to the Chief' when the 'Big Boss' swept over the Piscataqua River into the yard.

Three things interfered with this program, however. First, the band didn't know, "Hail to the Chief." Second, the band was given the wrong signal and played a rival tarsmouth shipbuilder with a march, and third, Mr. Schwab with characteristic modesty, slipped in the rear gate, and ducked the scheduled reception.

It was the first steel shipyard Mr. Schwab visited in New England, and the first where there were many foreign workmen.

Mr. Schwab's brass band, clad in vari-colored shirts, overalls, or whatever the men had been wearing at their work in the shops, assembled for the reception at 2 o'clock, when Mr. Schwab was scheduled to arrive. Chief L. S. Thompson had his bluecoated police lined up at the same hour.

Mr. Schwab, however, had been inspecting the new ways and was at the Wentworth Hotel, New Castle, as guest of the officials. He was also shaking hands with Annie Oakley, a family friend of many years. So he didn't arrive until 3:30.

"This is the best shipyard on the Atlantic coast," he said in his address to the men, "and we are going to back you to the limit. This will be a permanent yard and you will have all the contracts you can fill."

After leaving the yards the party came to Boston. Mr. Schwab expressed himself as surprised and greatly pleased at the progress being made at the shipyards of northern New England.

SATURDAY DANCES FOR ENLISTED MEN

The fad for social recreation among the Boston boys who have gone into the service continues to grow. Soldier and sailor boys say that Saturday night dances afford a pleasing antidote for the strict discipline of the week. As a result many of the dance halls which have been holding socials this Summer will open regular season's work next week. Mrs. James J. Storrow is one of the social leaders who advocates this form of amusement, and the ballroom of Roughan Hall, in Charlestown, no less than 500 sailor boys have requested the management to open the ball. As a result Roughan Hall will be open on Labor Day night and will continue each Saturday night throughout the season.

SCHWAB FINDS SHIPYARDS HERE O. K.

Charles M. Schwab and his party left Boston today for New London, and Groton, Ct., to inspect the shipyards there. They spent the night at the Quincy-Plaza, where Mr. Schwab had an important business engagement.

Yesterday at the Atlantic Corporation's yards at Freeman's Point, Portsmouth, N. H., the police force awaited the appearance of Mr. Schwab. The corporation's band was scheduled to play "Hail to the Chief" when the "Big Boss" swept over the Piscataqua River into the yard.

Three things interfered with this program, however. First, the band didn't know, "Hail to the Chief." MRS. SKEELS TO FACE COURT TUESDAY

Lawrence, August 31.—Mrs. Bessie May Skeels, who is charged with the larceny of jewelry from the estate of Miss Florence M. Gay, Abbott Academy teacher, in whose room she and her husband were found dead from an overdose of morphine, will be arraigned in Lawrence Police Court Tuesday.

At the Lawrence General Hospital, where Mrs. Skeels is under guard suffering from the effects of poison, self-administered the police say, and a nervous collapse following her arrest, it was thought she would be in condition to stand the ordeal. Her condition is somewhat improved today.

A legal battle impends in the effort of the Essex County authorities to fasten the loss of the missing jewelry upon the nurse, who has been engaged Daniel J. Daley of Boston as her counsel. Mr. Daley visited her at the hospital today and later talked with police officials. He will represent her at the arraignment, and District Attorney Wells will come up from Salem to take the ground to prosecute the case for the county authorities.

WAR VETERANS TO WHIP 12TH INTO SHAPE

Camp Devens, Ayer, Aug. 31.—Sixty-three trench veterans, in command of Colonel F. A. Connolly, have arrived here to help whip the newly-organized 12th Division into shape as quickly as possible. With the exception of Colonel Connolly, all are non-commissioned officers.

Every one of the sixty-three wore gold service stripes for service with General Pershing's forces in France.

Private Onofrio Brignolo, who was sentenced by court martial to three years at hard labor and dishonorable discharge from the army for stealing a money belt from a comrade, will have to serve but three months because of clemency exercised by Major-General McCain, commanding this division. What's More Brignolo will be reinstated at the expiration of his term.

General McCain said that he took this step in order that the soldier might be redeemed and saved for the colors.

Brigadier-General John E. Woodward has arrived from Camp Upton to take command of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Brigade of the Twelfth Division.

The Fifth Engineers from Camp Forrest are also numbered among the latest arrivals.

SEARS ROEBUCK & CO. APPEAL FROM RULING

Washington, Aug. 31.—Attorneys for the big mail order house of Sears Roebuck & Co. of Chicago have appealed from the Federal Trade Commission's recent order requiring it to "cease and desist from unfair and misleading advertising," it was announced today.

The case is the first appeal from a ruling or order since the Federal Trade Commission was organized. The appeal will be heard in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh District.

MEXICO PROMISES TO MODIFY TAX LAWS

Washington, Aug. 31.—Promise is made by the Mexican government that it will modify its tax laws, regarded by the foreign oil interests as confiscatory, if the oil interests will take their case into court and prove there that the effect of the laws is as they charge.

The STAGE

BY F. J. McISAAC

MAY ROBSON, HITCHY AND EXPERIENCE

The Hollis Street Theatre reopens tonight with May Robson in "A Little Bit Old Fashioned," a comedy which is said to set the clever character actress in one of her best vehicles.

Miss Robson is one of the veterans of the American stage in point of service, and has a long list of achievements behind her. Although she is still in middle life her stage career began as long ago as 1884 as Tilly the London Sixway in "Two Roads of Gold." Soon after she joined the famous Madison Square Theatre Company and made notable successes in "Our Society," "Jim the Penman" and "Partners."

She was in the cast which gave "Robert Elsmere" at the Union Square Theatre in 1889, and the next season she joined the Lyceum Theatre company, then in its palmiest days, where she appeared in "The Charity Ball," "The Private Secretary" and "Americans Abroad." She essayed Shakespeare, playing Audrey in "As You Like It," at Palmer's Theatre in 1892, and then she was engaged by Charles Frohman for his Empire Theatre Company, where she was seen in "Lovers' Lane" and "The Luck of Roaring Camp."

For a few seasons she tried musical comedy and appeared with James T. Powers in "The Messenger Boy."

It was not until 1907 that Miss Robson essayed middle-aged roles and that year she made her greatest success in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." In "A Little Bit Old Fashioned" she is said to have a part which is along similar lines.

Managing Hitchy a Big Job.

For several days past Raymond Hitchcock and his company have been hard at work rehearsing at the Colonial Theatre for the opening next Monday of the reconstructed "Hitchy-Koo, 1918," which has been taken under the management of K. and E. Dillingham and Ziegfeld.

It shows where Hitchy stands when such a galaxy of successful managers should combine to finance his entertainment after his own efforts to be a producer had gone blooey.

Neither Leon Errol nor Bordoni are in the new Hitchy-Koo, but Raymond Hitchcock is supported by a strong array of specialists who include George More, Roy Cummings, Charles Howard, and Florence O. Denishawn.

The chorus is said to justify the catchline invented by Hitchy of "Forty Under Twenty." It is a regular chicken festival.

"Experience" the Record Breaker.

"Experience," which played the Shubert, Wilbur, Plymouth and Boston Opera House during its long stay in Boston three seasons ago, comes back next week for a strictly limited visit and houses at the Majestic. The popularity of this entertainment during the past five seasons is quite without precedent in dramatic history.

Critics generally frowned upon it as a hodge-podge of adages and the epitomy of the obvious, but the public generally grabbed it down with gusto. Clergymen of all denominations endorsed it despite several scenes which could only be excused because of their great moral lesson. That mighty portion of the public which goes seldom or never to the theatre turned out en masse, and the show has toured the country like a triumphal procession.

A Hot Patriot

A gentleman who doesn't stop his name has written me protesting that "Friendly Enemies" is German propaganda.

War develops mean traits which are latent in times of peace, and there are lots of people in the U. S. A. who would like to see the Germans, Americans, provided the short were made thoroughly safe. President Wilson says "Friendly Enemies" the opening night and broke his custom of remaining incognito at the theatre by rising in his box and bearing endorsing the sentiments of the play.

If there is anybody in this country who believes that the Germans and the United States encourages German propaganda he is either a propagandist of some sort himself or is plain nut.

Some "Toughneck."

When whatever muse keeps the books of stage history writes down the name of the actor who was the most successful player of roughneck roles she will probably ask Jimmie Marlowe what he thinks of it.

They are James C. The only trouble with Marlowe is "Some Night" is that he doesn't get worth while parts long the past ten years George M. Cohan has kept him pretty busy, but the last time I saw him on the stage was the popular in "Cheating Cheaters." He played the Irish comedy role in "Her Rich Quick Wallingford," and take Cupid in "The Miracle Man," the comedy role in "Stop Thief," and going back ten years, played Harrigan in Cohan's "Fifty Miles From Boston," singing the song "Harrigan," which became very popular.

In "Some Night" Marlowe and Walsh are a couple of detectives during the dream portion of the piece and army officers in the epilogue.

Florence Won't Make Mugs.

Florence Moore would do a lot to get a laugh but there is one thing she won't do—mug herself up.

"If people are willing to laugh at my natural self well and good," said Miss Moore the other day. "I'm not a ravishing beauty, I know, but such as I am I intend to remain. To me there is something repulsive about a woman comedienne who resorts to making herself ugly. Thoughtless people laugh at an ugly woman but most people pity her. I know there are women who accentuate their shininess, paint their mouths from ear to ear and pull their hair back until they look as though they had been newly scalped by a red Indian. I wish 'em luck. Not for mine."

She certainly doesn't have to resort to such devices as those who have seen "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," can attest. And her long career in vaudeville with Billy Montgomery as partner in the firm of Montgomery and Moore bears her out.

Red Above the Green.

Margot Kelly with the blazing hair, who is one of the bright lights of "Oh Lady, Lady," broke into print a few days ago to express her indignation at letters from lady patrons asking if her locks were hand colored. A Harvard student read her plaint and sent her the following consolation:

There's a lady named Kelly,
Dat's known as Margot,
Some say dat she's a colleen named Kelly,
But I'm provin' her hair is pure red.
Shure, red hair's the style of the Emerald Isle,
'Tis the mark of her hero dead.
You'll not find a blonde in Killarney,
But a dozen red heads to the mile!
Miss Kelly, I'm strong for yer blarney,
Yer a rogue wid yer eyes and yer smile!

Margot, now, sounds a bit fancy—
'Tis Margaret or Mary I should be;
Yer a wild Irish rose from yer head to yer toes,
As it takes but a half eye to see!
Shure, an' why should a colleen named Kelly
Be provin' her hair is true red?
Shure, red hair's the style of the Emerald Isle,
'Tis the mark of her hero dead!

War Relief Stock.

The Jewett Players re-open next week in "Never Say Die," a comedy in which William Collier starred. They announce a season of thirty-six weeks, and propose to devote what profits accrue from the first twenty weeks to various war charities. During the coming season more farces and light comedies will be given than in the past, because Henry Jewett believes that the public wants frivolous amusement in war times.

Be it also noted that a percentage of the salaries of the actors will be devoted to war charities during the first twenty weeks.

Popular Price Opera.

Announcement that the Shuberts have secured the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, now appearing in New York city, for a cycle of eight operas at the Boston Opera House beginning Monday, Sept. 23, will be news to music lovers. All who remember the voice of Marcella Craft, prima soloist of the Metropolitan Church, will be pleased to learn that the soprano will come with the San Carlos to sing two of her favorite roles.

Miss Elizabeth Amaden, the dramatic soprano, also well known in local opera circles, will be heard upon two occasions during the week, the first of which will be "Aida," wherein Salazar, the Spanish tenor, and Joseph Royer, French baritone, will participate.

The organization numbers 150 members, and there are thirty principals. The Messrs. Shubert announce the engagement at regular first-class theatre prices.

HOLLIS ST. THEATRE

"It will be a gala occasion at the Hollis Street Theatre tonight, when the new season is ushered in at that playhouse by "A Little Bit Old Fashioned," the new offering in which she is being presented by Augustus Pitou.

"A Little Bit Old Fashioned," a full-fledged farce-comedy by Anna Nichols, was designed to induce laughter, and it is said to carry out the intention of its author. It has more sunshine packed away in every scene than most plays have in their entirety.

Miss Robson is acknowledged the leading character comedienne of today. Her well defined ability as an impersonator of eccentric women long ago placed her at the head of America's comedy stars.

Mr. Pitou has surrounded Miss Robson with a cast of unusual distinction, in which will be seen Burr Caruth, Edith Conrad, Peggy Cameron, Howard I. Smith, C. A. Winters, Balazar, the Spanish tenor, and Joseph Royer, French baritone, will participate.

The Truth About Plays in Town

WILBUR THEATRE—"Oh, Lady, Lady," the clever Princess Theatre musical comedy, full of good acting, pretty girls and charming songs. Business enormous.

TREMONT THEATRE—"Some Night," a musical comedy by Harry Delf. Bright music, good people, pretty chorus.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," with Florence Moore, big laughing farce. Capacity business.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Lew Fields in "Friendly Enemies," a patriotic comedy, full of laughter and big moments, admirably performed.

COLONIAL THEATRE

The Colonial will ring up the curtain for the season Monday night with Raymond Hitchcock and his brand new edition of "Hitchy Koo" as the magnetic features. He will as usual be surrounded by an arresting group of principals, each of whom is an individual ace in the professional world of entertainment, and the glorious glories of "Forty under twenty" are always an alluring feature. George Moore, Roy Cummings, Earl Denham, Charles Howard, Ray Dooley, Jean Tyne, Ruth Mitchell, Jean Roberts, Eleanor Sinclair and Florence O'Denishawn are active characters in the radiant 1918 edition of the bright and jovial Hitchy Koo. Monday nights performance will be the first public show of the newest Hitchcock provision for national gayety, for, as his representative puts it, the genial generator of robust laughter, Hitchy Koo, is "a national necessity," quite as much as "The Follies" are "a national institution."

The production has been in the making for several weeks under the direction of Ned Wayburn. The lines and lyrics are by Glen MacDonough, and the music by Raymond Hubbell. Some interpolated musical numbers are credited to Harold Orlob.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

It will be like welcoming an old friend when "Experience," George V. Hobart's modern morality comedy drama of today, returns to Boston next Monday to open a three weeks' engagement at the Shubert-Majestic Theatre. This will be the fourth Shubert playhouse in Boston to house "Experience."

All the virtues and vices of mankind are personified in "Experience." The curtain rises in the "Land Where Dreams Begin." Here Youth takes leave of his sweetheart Love and his sister Hope and accompanied by Ambition out into the big world with a spirit of Springtime in his heart, heaped up with the determination of confidence that he will surely make a great name for himself in the busy marts of trade and commerce.

On the street of Vacillation in the great city Youth meets Experience and is determined to steadfastly pursue his way with Ambition until he meets a fascinating lady called Pleasure, and so he goes on meeting in turn Opportunity, Beauty, Deceit, Fashion, Slander, Conceit, Snob, Bluebood, Travel, Style, Frivolity and many others.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Janet Adair the new sensation in song recitations who recently scored a big hit on Broadway will appear as a co-headliner with the Hermine Shone Company in the holiday week bill at Keith's Theatre.

Hermine Shone and her able company will present a comedy, "The Best Sellers." Supporting Miss Shone will be Regan Houston. The Best Sellers is a travesty on modern fiction.

With these star acts as headliners there are also other clever performers on the bill, and it promises to be one of the best holiday week attractions this year. Dooley and Sales always Boston favorites, will again appear in "Will Yer Jim." Although there is that of last season they have added much new material to it and it is a big hit. Sheehan and Regay, New York's society dancers will offer "Five Foot Fancies." Halten and Fuller always a popular team will present "The Corridor of Time." Harry and Grace Ellsworth, brother and sister, are as clever as ever in their new act of songs and dances. Fern Bigelow and King will offer "Handsome and Bumps."

ORPHEUM THEATRE

The brilliant holiday week bills of vaudeville and photo-plays are announced at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. The first half the bill will boast of two headliners in William Stain, familiarly dubbed "the Italian Statesman," who indulges in verbal collisions of the Italianised English language couched in an argumentative monologue which he titles "His First Speech," and in the Sorrento Quintette, five accomplished singers and instrumentalists, who offer each their specialties from programs of the more popular classical airs culled from the bill include Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDonald in their one-act play, "The Knockout"; Kemp and Hollison, colored entertainers of high rank, in their skit, "His Vocation"; De Vole and Raymond, youthful singers and dancers, and the Norman Brothers, aerialists and equilibrists. On the screen there will be shown the news and official war pictures, a comedy, and the photo-play, "The Heart of the Wild," picturing Elsie Ferguson. This is a stirring story of the Northwest, the screen version being drawn from a play by Edgar Selwyn, and a novel by Sir Gilbert Parker. Its central figure is the daughter of a tavern keeper on the border.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

Back Bay theatregoers will welcome the announcements of the re-opening of the St. James Theatre on Labor Day for a picture and vaudeville house with a split-week policy. The interior has been remodeled and redecorated in exquisite taste, and it will be a new playhouse in appearance, with feature first-run photo-plays and vaudeville direct from successful New York runs. Hector's Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Hector, will furnish the music program. A mammoth bill has been arranged for the initial performance, with David Wark Griffith's "The Great Love" as the stellar feature. This is one of Mr. Griffith's most ambitious screen offerings, dealing specifically with the great awakening of the wealthy and exclusive classes of England to the tremendous needs of the war.

The vaudeville for the first half of the week will include Howard and Ross, Knox Wilson, Rory O'Moore and company, Ryan and Lester, and a musical novelty, "On the Beach at Waikiki." For the last half the Parisians, Kubanz, Van der Koors, Three Manning Sisters and a mixed act per excellence.

GAYETY THEATRE

The attraction at the Gayety Theatre next week will be that ever popular burlesque organization, "The New Bon Ton Girls." The complement of the company is said to be the largest and best traveling. A two-act musical burlesque entitled "At the Movies," written by Joe Opp and John G. Jermon, is a vehicle where pen reigns supreme, intermingled with bright, catchy musical ensembles, giving the large and handsome chorus a chance to disport themselves. The second act is a screamer from start to finish and as the opener serves to introduce the large coterie of comedians and pretty girls in a mixture of mirth and music. The costumes are the work of a Parisian modiste and original in design displaying that famous Directoire Gown.

BOSTON THEATRE

NOVEL WAY OF SELLING FILMS

The new Boston firm of Gordon and Mayer, which have Charlie Chaplin and Anita Stewart under contract established a new form of film enterprise yesterday when they engaged a theatre and advertised in the newspapers a private showing of "Smashing Through to Berlin," a war drama, and "The Keeper of Berlin," a burlesque two-reeler, which they are offering to exhibitors.

There was a big audience present and the hearty applause of a real audience was a most convincing selling argument to the theatre owners present who ordinarily have no opportunity of judging whether a picture will please an audience as well as it does themselves.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE

The Franklin Park Theatre, Dorchester, one of the best equipped and most modern of New England playhouses, which for the past several weeks has been closed in order to allow painters and decorators to thoroughly repaint and redecorate the theatre, is announced to reopen Monday, Labor Day. Important with this announcement is the fact that Marcus Loew, prominent New York vaudeville and theatre owner, will supervise the operation of its new policy, for the Franklin Park Theatre, beginning with its Loew regime, will inaugurate a continuous policy of high-class vaudeville and feature photo-plays. It is also planned to give Sunday night concerts. The feature photo-play for the initial half of the coming week will be William Fox's masterful production of Victor Hugo's world-famous novel, "Les Miserables," with William Farnum in the leading role.

PARK THEATRE

William Farnum in "Riders of the Purple Sage," based on Zane Gray's novel, will be seen at the Park next week. It is a drama of Mormonism and full of exciting incidents during the days of the great plains.

The other feature is "Boston Blackie's Little Pal," featuring Bert Lytell. The young matinee idol plays a burglar in this exciting dramatization of John Boyle's magazine story. The eighth episode of "A Fight for Millions," featuring William Duncan, the Hearst-Pathe Weekly and a Vitagraph comedy complete the picture. Miss Margaret Healy will be the soloist.

Sunday night the special double bill includes Emily Stevens in "The Slacker," and Madge Kennedy in "Baby Mine."

MODERN THEATRE

Geraldine Farrar, erstwhile songstress supreme, and again motion picture star, comes anew to the screen in the production, "The Turn of the Wheel," at the Modern Theatre, where it will be given its first Boston showings throughout the week. An idol of opera lovers, this remarkable young woman, who is above all typically American according to the best standards in all to which she lends her artistic endeavors, has appeared on the screen in several photoplays which have served to create a following apart from music lovers. Thus is she fortunate in combining two armies into a mighty host of admirers who rally to her banner whenever she appears in a new motion picture. The story of this photoplay concerns an American woman who meets a man at Monte Carlo.

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the beginning of work on the great Mount Cenis tunnel in 1857. It was finished in 1870, is eight miles long and varies in altitude from 3,775 to 4,245 feet. Before its completion the road over the pass, built by Napoleon, was used.

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

After a Happy Day Anne Gives Jim a Letter and Receives a Severe Shock

By Ann Lisle

(Copyright, 1919, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

JIM and Betty exchanged glances.

My husband spoke questioningly:

"Tom Mason! Where under the sun did you meet him? Why should he rent us two magnificently furnished rooms for only seventy-five a month? That's—what do you think, Betty?"

I felt humiliated. Evidently Jim didn't think me capable of a clever bargain. He doubted my judgment; he asked Betty's opinion. She leaned forward now, eager and delighted—"forcing her opinion on me again," as I told myself.

"I offer you a better bargain, my dears! Oh, it's providential! My work is going to keep me out of town until October. I haven't time to get my place into its Summer clothes or to find a good caretaker. So here's where you can do me a real favor, Children, I appoint you 'caretakers' for Betty till she comes back in October—and helps you find a little nest of your own."

Jim's eyes lighted, as he cried:

"Betty you're a wonder! This is just what we want, isn't it, Anne?"

I held my voice to cold steadiness —but I could feel the blood burning in my cheeks.

"I hardly see how we can accept Mrs. Bryce's offer, dear," I said. "If Mr. Mason's seventy-five a month looks like—nothing to you, what is an apartment rent free?"

There was a breathless moment—that ugly word "charity" fairly exhaled poison gas. Suddenly Betty Bryce rose and laid her hand on mine.

Betty Goes Away

"I'm off, children. I've an appointment with an Army Colonel and a Red Cross captain! So I must rush. Don't soon Jimmie fix my car's at the door. Here are the extra keys to my little place. I'm going to count on finding you there when I come back."

She tossed the keys on the table between us. They flashed up at me in cool violence—like hers. How dared Betty Bryce fling her unwelcome gifts at me! Angrily I pushed them away from me. Jim's eyes darkened to steel gray—to black as he stirred and looked across the little table. Then he picked up the keys, studied them quietly and spoke—more to himself than to me:

He put the keys deep into his pocket. I felt as if they were locking me out of his heart.

CHAPTER XII.

AS Jim and I left the sea room Monday afternoon, we were side by side—yet miles apart. A quarrel could not have estranged us more completely than the silent rejection of Betty Bryce's offer, and Jim's equally silent championship of her friend. Betty had left her apartment—and Jim had the keys in his pocket.

Suddenly we were hailed us!

"Jim Harrison! Hello, old chap!"

There was warmth and real affection in the tone. The speaker was a tall Englishman of about 35. I liked his voice—I liked his looks —I liked everything about him.

Jim stopped with an air of joyous greeting, which indicated a certain relief in getting away from the exclusive society of Mrs. Harrison.

"Winston! Terry, old chap. This is great—"

A minute later the two men were shaking hands with honest devotion.

"My wife—Captain Winston," said Jim, introducing us. "Terry Winston was my bunkie in the Royal Flying Corps—the very best friend I ever had."

I could tell in his voice a pleadfor eagerness that I be nice to Captain Winston. And some flicker of humor made me realize that I must have been pretty heastly to most of his friends to make Jim so worry about my attitude toward this handsome blond giant.

"Mrs. Jimmie. Well, if this isn't a bit of all right! I've come over here and to find my pal with a little wife. I didn't think Jimmie was a lady's man—but that's the kind that always has the real luck in the end."

His words, his strong hand clasp, his steady blue eyes, put me at ease. I knew that in Captain Terry Winston I had found a friend. Presently it was arranged that Jim should run over to the Army and Navy Club with him to say hello to a few of "the boys," and that at seven my husband and I were to be Captain Winston's guests at the Carlton Roof.

I hurried upstairs to make myself fine. Under our door there was a long official looking white envelope. I picked it up curiously. It was addressed to Lieutenant J. H. Harrison.

At Once at Ease

A wife must not open her husband's letters—but she may study their postmarks. In the left-hand corner of the envelope there was printed:

"War Department—Office of the Adjutant-General."

What could it mean? Why should the adjutant-general be writing to my boy?

Suddenly conviction swept over me. Jim was no longer fit for duty. He could never fly again. This was his dismissal from the army! I tried to picture my boy in civilian's clothes—"Fearless Jim" without his uniform. It seemed unthinkable. The white envelope I held in my hand meant the end of the world to Jim!

I came to a fixed determination. Nothing must mar the dinner with Captain Winston. I would hide the letter and give it to Jim when we came home that night.

Later I applauded my own decision. For when Captain Winston called about going "back to the front" after three months' recruiting work over here and fairly included Jim to his plans, I could see how joyously, how gratefully my husband responded. Only one incident marred the delightful dinner. Captain Winston asked suddenly, "Mrs.—er—er Bryce—" and then looked at me in evident embarrassment. But I managed to seem unconscious of that.

Home at eleven—happy, pleased with each other and the world. The incident of the keys forgotten. For a while I had even forgotten the letter and the pain it might cause Jim. But now the time had come when I must give that letter to him. I tried to find words to help him.

CAMOUFLAGED CLOTHES

By Rita Stuyvesant

TO make needs meet this Summer, many girls are stealing a march on wartime prices and remodeling their old dresses.

Almost every one has some terrible error in the tone. The other is in good condition. The fuller shirt of last season can be remodeled with comparatively easy and very smart results, which is indeed encouraging.

When you bring out your old Summer frock and find it looks out of date, begin at once to recut it. Add a few yards of pretty figured material your old frock will be well camouflaged to do service another season. A pretty blue linen frock that was too voluminous to be stylish was recut and made over with blue and white checked gingham. The skirt was cut off a little below the knees and a panel about six inches buttoned on front.

Under this tunic was a narrow skirt of the checked gingham, but in the latter case the material of the muslin was used for the sides and and back of the skirt, as it did not show under the tunic.

The blouse was extremely simple. All trimming was removed and the front buttoned over with pearl buttons. A tiny vest, triangular in shape, was cut into the blouse at the waistline. A bit more of gingham was tied into a bow in the back. Fine white organdy collar and cuffs completed the trig, cool, crisp appearance so refreshing on a hot day. This only one of a number of suggestions for making over.

Is Your Voice Good?

Pleasant Speaking Tones Are a Real Valuable Asset

By Beatrice Fairfax

IF you have not a good voice you have deliberately neglected a tremendous advantage on the high road to success, and one that is within the grasp of everybody.

From the beginning of time poets have sung of the music of women's voices and—incidentally, given the sex a highly valuable tip in regard to one of its most fascinating attributes. Nothing makes so strong an appeal to the emotions as a beautiful voice. It works magic for its happy possessor and yet, how many women rise to the sun with the dulcet tones of their voices?

Actresses of no very great ability have turned the public in their favor and achieved the utmost success by reason of agreeably cultivated voices.

While actresses of note have kept the fickle public true to them for years on account of fine voices, Sarah Bernhardt's hold on three generations of theatregoers is undoubtedly due to her world-famous "golden voice."

Doubtless all these gifted ladies worked early and late over their voices. Julia Marlowe took singing lessons continually to improve her speaking voice, though I never hear of her singing a note for even her closest friends or her own amusement. But the exercise gave a beautiful resonance to her speaking tones, and was well worth the effort.

Where do the American women with beautiful voices keep themselves? an observer is tempted to ask, after listening to a chorus of nasal, "and I says to him" or "she says to me," and one is forced to the fatal conclusion that the women who are clever enough to acquire good voices are immediately married for love, and travel in limousines ever after.

A good voice is even more valuable in business than in society. Your own corner of the world may accept you for a variety of reasons —because you are rich, pretty, agreeable, or important man's agreeable, or important man's wife. But business is relentless. You hold your "job" by reason of your capacity to be firm and it's up to you to uphold the dignity of your employer and put make his business shine. A vaudeville voice, accent or speech.

If a good voice is to do not mean a ridiculous assumption of what is supposed to be a fashionable accent, but a well placed voice, never raised and with due regard paid to the proper pronunciation of our splendid language.

"DON'TS" FOR THE SICK

By Brice Belden, M. D.

A VAST number of people who are ill attempt persistently to regain their health by the adoption of measures concerning which they seek no medical advice. In a majority of instances what they do is ill-advised. It is a pity that they seem to realize the chances that they take, so that the physician may be called in when he is based on unwarranted confidence in their ability to choose measures sagely.

But this is a most unwise way to deal with such a delicate mechanism as the human body.

Very often a system is adopted which would do the afflicted individual great good provided certain preliminary matters were first attended to.

For example, a person suffering from headaches will select some resort in the country with the idea that an outing in the open will effect a cure when, as a matter of fact, the headaches are due to disease of the roots of some upper teeth. Or, as in the latter case, the preliminary treatment required has to do with the dental trouble. Such an individual finds that he rows upon the lake, and his mountain climbing, and his excellent food, do him no good, for the chronic infection of his system proceeds just the same.

Another person who suffers from what he or she believes to be rheumatism goes to some place for the waters. In this case, the waters and baths are beneficial for weeks and exhausts his or her funds, with no benefit whatever, for the simple reason that there is septic absorption going on all the time from the chronic diseased tooth.

Then there is the person who is afflicted by a neuritis for which he or she has adopted to take regularly the "nerve tonic," or to go to the celebrated health station at Neurosthan and take mud baths, when the matter really is that he is suffering from the use of silent coffee, tea, alcohol, or tobacco, or of all four.

Be sure you're right first, and then go ahead with the mention of the doctor—never otherwise.

Shakespeare Modernized

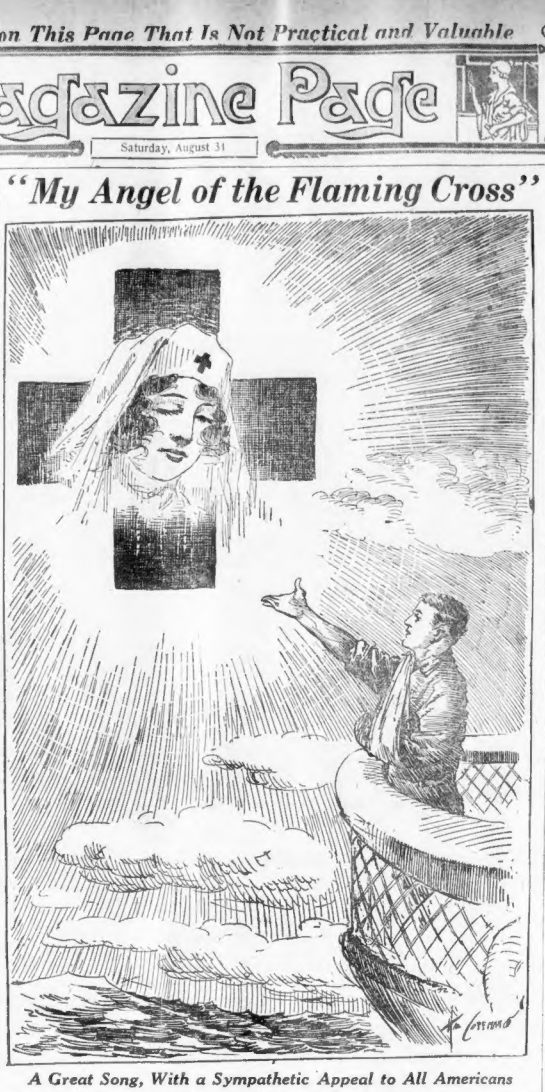
"My Angel of the Flaming Cross"



A Great Song, With a Sympathetic Appeal to All Americans

Have you heard the latest popular song success, "My Angel of the Flaming Cross"? Here are the words and chorus. Thousands are singing them all over the land:

On a homeward transport, as the sun was sinking low,
Stood a wounded soldier dreaming in the twilight glow.
Visions of an angel, golden hair and eye of blue,
Said a sailor lad, "Why are you so sad?"
Said the soldier, "I'll tell you."

REFRAIN

"There's an angel over there, an angel from I know not where,
Smiling sweetly through her tears, she drove my fears away.
Little girl, who nursed me thru, I owe my life to you.
Oh, come back, Love that I found and lost,
My angel of the Flaming Cross."

When the war is over, many stories will be told,
Tales of war and romance, tales that can never grow old.
Tales of heroes fighting, tales of love and mercy, too.
But the best of all is the soldier's call, Sweet—
Red Cross girl to you.

THE PLOTTERS

"OF course you don't! Butler straightened himself up and spoke briskly. "You are faint for your breakfast, and 'ere I am letting you talk about everything except what you most need—food. I declare I am ashamed of myself! You just lean back against that tree and close your eyes until I return. I'll not be long."

She did his bidding. She was tired and perplexed.

For a minute she had thought that the worst would soon be over, was, perhaps, over already. She had fancied that Clifford had told John Butler who she was. From Butler's bearing he had shown that he felt no resentment at the deception she and Douglas had practiced upon him. If that had been the case, all was well.

But as soon as she mentioned her brother, she saw her mistake. Butler knew nothing of her kinship with Douglas Wade, his physician. All that revelation must yet be made—the indignation must yet be faced—perhaps even the loss of his regard.

She sighed wearily. Never mind! She would rest now. She would not cross that bridge before she came to it.

The warm sunshine drew sweet perfume from the clover. The bees hummed drowsily about her. The shade of the apple boughs above her shielded her from the direct glare of the noon rays; a robin whistled to his mate; a song-sparrow trilled out his joy in the day and in life.

How lovely it all was! And how deliciously drowsy it made her!

She had slept little last night; her nerves were over-tired. She let her eyelids droop over her eyes, and in three minutes she was fast asleep.

In the farmhouse Mrs. Chapin was preparing a tray according to John Butler's suggestions.

The Farmer Objects

"Miss Moore was rather shocked at the sight of that dog lying dead there," he explained. "So she thought she didn't want any breakfast. But I persuaded her to let me bring something down to the orchard to her. I think a cup of your hot coffee and a couple of those biscuits that you cooked for breakfast will be all she wants. Oh, yes—and a saucer of those big blackberries."

Mrs. Moore liked John Butler. She liked him better—at least with more ease—now that her son was out of the way. Clifford's dislike of him had made her feel almost as if she was wrong in not sharing it.

Perhaps Clifford had been a little peevish because Elizabeth Wade had not seemed to like the son of the house better than she did this stranger. Well, there was no accounting for girls' tastes. And maybe she did care a good deal about Clifford after all, only would not show it. The thought softened the maternal heart more than ever toward Elizabeth.

"I guess Lizzie's not very well, anyway," she remarked. "I noticed last evening that she seemed kinder moping."

As Butler started across the back lawn, carrying the laden tray, he met Amos Chapin. The farmer eyed him in surprise.

"Say, what's the matter with her? Ain't she sick?"

"Not at all, Mr. Chapin. Miss Moore is very tired, and I persuaded her to let me bring her breakfast down to her. She is resting under the apple trees."

"Humph! Well, I'll be jiggered! Ain't she comin' in to eat with the rest of us?"

"Miss Moore prefers to remain where she is, Mr. Chapin. I am sure that you will not disturb her."

"Humph! Well, I'll be jiggered!" Amos repeated, and stared after Butler's retreating figure.

An Interesting Serial of East and West

"I thought you were at work," he said. "Where are you taking that stuff?"

"To Miss Moore," John replied, calmly.

"What's the matter with her that she can't eat breakfast in the house without taking a man's valuable time?" Amos demanded.

"She was sickened by the sight of your shooting that dog down right before her eyes," Butler replied sharply.

Amos started to retort, then thought better of it and went on toward the house.

To Be Continued.

Too Eager.

The sweet young thing tripped daintily into the postoffice, and, filling in a telegraph form, handed it over the counter. The clerk glanced at it. There was one word —"Yes."

"Thirty cents, please!"

"What!" cried the young thing. "For one word?"

"Oh, you can repeat that word half a dozen times for the same money!" laughed the clerk.

"Yes, yes, yes, yes——" muttered the girl, seeing how it would read. Then she said: "But that would hardly do, you know. It sounds too eager. It's an answer to a proposal of marriage."

It Was Wrong

Angry Landowner—Hi, you rascal! Can't you see that notice there —"No fishing here," eh? Youthful Angler—Yus, but it is wrong, for there is fishing here. I've caught six big 'uns.

The Pawns Count

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

"LET me get this!" he exclaimed. "You haven't been down in the lobby of the hotel, you haven't been knocked down by a taxicab that skidded, you haven't lost a pocketbook which you had previously stolen from my sister."

Nikasti shook his head. He seemed completely mystified. He watched Pamela's face carefully.

"Perhaps there has been some mistake," he suggested quietly. "My English is sometimes not very good. I would not dream of trying to rob the young lady. I have not lost any pocketbook. I have not descended lower down in the hotel than this floor."

Van Teyl waved him away, accepted his farewell salutation, and waited until the door was closed.

"Look here, Pamela," he protested, turning almost appealingly towards her, "my brain wasn't made for this sort of thing. What in thunder does it all mean?"

Pamela looked at the fragments of paper upon the floor and sank back in an easy chair.

"Jimmy," she confided, "I don't know."

CHAPTER XV.

PAMELA opened her eyes the next morning upon a distinctly pleasing sight. At the foot of her bed was an enormous basket of pink carnations. On the counterpane by her side lay a smaller cluster of twelve very beautiful dark red Gloire de Dijon roses. Attached to these latter was a note.

"When did these flowers come, Leah?" Pamela asked the maid who was moving about the room.

"An hour ago, madam," the girl told her.

"Read the name on the card," Pamela directed, pointing to the mass of pink blossoms.

"Mr. Owen Archer," the girl read out, "with respectful compliments."

Pamela smiled.

"He doesn't know, then," she murmured to herself, "yet my path ready, Leah."

The maid disappeared into the inner room. Pamela tore open the note attached to the roses by her side, and read it slowly through:

Dear Miss Van Teyl:

I am so very sorry, but the luncheon we had half-planned for today must be postponed. I have an urgent message to go South, to inspect—but no secrets! It's horribly disappointing. I hope we may meet in a few days.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN LUTCHESTER.

Pamela laid down the note, conscious of an indefined but distinct sensation of disappointment. After all, it was not so wonderful to wake up and find oneself in New York. The sun was pleasant, the little puffs of air which came in through the window across the park, delightful and exhilarating, yet something had gone out of the day. Accustomed to self-analysis, she asked herself swiftly—what? It was, without a doubt, something to do with Lutchester's departure. She tried to face the question of her disappointment. Was it possible to feel any real interest in a man who preferred a government post to the army at such a time, and who had brought his golf clubs out to America? Her imagination for a moment revolved around the problem of his apparently uninteresting and yet, in some respects, contradictory personality. Was it really her fancy or had she, every now and then, detected behind that flamboyant manner traces of something deeper and more serious, something which seemed to indicate a life and aims of which nothing appeared upon the surface? She clasped her knees and sat up in bed, listening to the sound of the running water in the next room. Was there any possible explanation of his opportune appearance on the night before with a dummy pocket book and a concocted story? The cleverest man on earth could surely never have gauged her position with Fischer and intervened in such a manner at the psychological moment.

Yet he had done it, she reflected, gazing thoughtfully at Fischer's gift. If, indeed, he knew what was passing around him to that extent, how much more knowledge might he not possess? She felt the little silken belt around her waist. At least there was no one who could take Sandy Graham's secret from her until she chose to give it up, supposing for a moment that Lutchester was also out for the great things, was he fooled by her attitude? If he knew so much, he must know that the secret remained in her. Perhaps, after all, he was only a philanderer in intrigue.

Pamela bathed and dressed, sent for her brother, and, to his horror, insisted upon an American breakfast.

"It's quite time I came back to look after you, Jimmy," she said severely, as she watched him send away his grapefruit and gaze helplessly at his bacon and eggs. "You're going to turn over a new leaf, young man."

All Over Now

"I shan't be sorry," he confessed fervently. "I tell you, Pamela, when you have a thing like this hanging over you, it's hell—some hell! You just want to drown your thoughts and keep going all the time."

She nodded sagely.

"Well, that's over now, Jimmy," she said, "and I meant you to listen to me. He's more than sure that Mr. Fischer may find out at any moment that the mysterious pocketbook, which you have taken the right course by refusing to go about with me? I am not a professional man, but have a good position and a future.

F. E. R. AND S. E.

YOU do not say anything about your ages, but I am inclined to believe you are both young, and can afford to wait a little and see if the young lady's parents will not change their minds.

You feel certain you have a "future"; why not begin to make that distant period of success the "present"? Naturally, mothers and fathers want to feel that their daughters marry men who can make them comfortable, and by showing them that you have the necessary determination and grit to do this, they will, in all probability, give their consent, whether you are a professional man or not.

Young Cashier in Distress

If the young girl cashier living at home with her parents who wrote me a few days ago will entrust me with her name and address, I shall be glad to help her. She says her age is nineteen and the letter was signed "Anxious."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Not a Professional

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young lady who returns my love, but her parents say she must marry a professional man. And if she marries any other she will have to elope with him and must never try to see her family again. Do you think she has taken the right course by refusing to go about with me? I am not a professional man, but have a good position and a future.

F. E. R. AND S. E.

"Jimmy," his sister begged, "let's quit. Of course, I know a little more than you do, but the little more that I do know only makes it more confusing. Now, to make it worse, he's going away."

"What, this morning?"

"Went away on his government work," Pamela announced. "I had a note and some roses from him. Don't tell me all about Jimmy. I keep on getting new ideas, and it makes my brain whirl. I want to talk about you."

"I'm a rotten lot to talk about," he sighed.

She patted his hand.

MORE DEADLY THAN A MAD DOG'S BITE

The bite of a rabid dog is no longer dreaded. Science has found a sure treatment, but the sore, itching death, the condition of poisoning of the blood, which follows the bite of one of the most deadly of all insects, the human bedbug, is not generally known. Science has also found a sure remedy for this pest. Any person who will send a dime to the Sterno Corporation, 9 East 37th Street, New York City, will receive by return mail a little booklet telling how to get rid of bedbugs. Sterno Canned Heat is the remedy. It is the same canned heat that is used in the trenches to heat the soldiers' rations. It is in the form of a solid alcohol, and is used in a small pocket stove. It is also used in the kitchen of the finest homes in the land, and is known as the ideal fuel for cooking small meals. It is used in the nursery for heating baby's bottle. It is used in the bathroom for heating water for shaving. It is used in the sick room for preparing delicacies for the invalid. It is used in the dining room for keeping food hot. Initiative and Referendum Stands Test of Experience

No governmental reform has ever stood the test of PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE IN OPERATION more triumphantly than the Initiative and Referendum.

United States Senator George E. Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and former Governor of Oregon, has said:

"The Initiative and Referendum has been a success in Oregon. The people of my State are satisfied with it, as is proved by the fact they have REPEATEDLY REJECTED BY OVERWHELMING MAJORITIES changes in the system that would impair its efficiency."

Governor Cox of Ohio says also:

"We have been ENTIRELY SATISFIED with the Initiative and Referendum. I think any proposal to go back to the old system WOULD BE DEFEATED FOUR TO ONE."

Any State that has once adopted the Initiative and Referendum can "go back to the old system" at any time by a majority vote, but NOT ONE OF THE TWENTY STATES which have tried the Initiative and Referendum has ever discarded it.

NEVER ONCE HAS THIS GREAT DEMOCRATIC REFORM BEEN ABANDONED BY THE PEOPLE AFTER THEY HAD ADOPTED IT AND TRIED IT.

MAJOR WALSH AWARDS SWIMMING PRIZES

Major Thomas L. Walsh, brother of former Governor David I. Walsh, told a capacity audience in B. F. Keith's Theatre that the lesson to be derived from the achievements of the five young women who outdistanced competitors in the mile and a half swim-run under the auspices of the Boston AMERICAN in the Charles River Basin last Saturday afternoon was in the preparations they made in advance to win their laurels.

The occasion for Major Walsh's speech was his presentation to four of the young women of the prizes offered by the Boston AMERICAN from the stage of the playhouse. It was expected that the major's brother, former Governor Walsh, would be able to make the presentations, but he had to leave hurriedly for Washington on war business. The four young women were guests of the AMERICAN and occupied a box in the theatre.

Thomas F. Phelan, Swimming Editor of the AMERICAN, introduced Major Walsh. The Misses Esther Miron of Webster, Rose Tonely of South Boston, Olive Holland of Wollaston and Katherine McArdle of South Boston were then introduced to the audience and awarded their prizes. Each received an ovation from the audience. Miss Irene Demars of Ludlow, winner of the third prize, was unable to attend.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES IN GREATER BOSTON

Next Sunday night at 7.30 there will be a service in commemoration of Lafayette at St. Paul's Cathedral. There will be addresses by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church, Newton Centre, on "Lafayette, and his ship the 'Victory.'" The French Consul, Mr. J. C. J. Flammend, has been invited, and his consular flag, the official French flag in Boston, will be carried in procession. The "Marseillaise" will be sung in French and English. The service will be preceded by the singing of patriotic hymns on the porch, led by a vested choir of men and four trumpeters.

* * *

Services with the first and second churches of Boston will be held at King's Chapel on Sunday at 10.30 a. m. Rev. George A. Gilmour of Dallas, Texas, will preach.

* * *

Dean Nathan R. Wood of Gordon Bible College, Boston, will preach at the 10.30 and 7.45 services at the Park Street Congregational Church. Musical selections will be rendered.

* * *

"Two Methods of Progress; Struggle and Mutual Aid," will be the subject to be discussed by Henry W. Pinkham at his meeting on Sunday, 11 a. m. in Wesleyan Hall. All are welcome.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Redding will reopen their meetings on Sunday, September 8th at Hall 400, 30 Huntington avenue.

* * *

Hon. Robert H. Morris will speak on "Measures for your Consideration submitted by the Constitutional Convention" at 4.30 Sunday, in Richards Hall, 30 Huntington avenue. This will make an interesting topic and all are invited to be present.

* * *

The speaker at the meeting of the Associated Bible Students this week will be Brother W. J. Davis. His theme for discussion promises to be an interesting one.

THEATRES

BEACON THEATRE

Geraldine Farrar, lustrous star whose luminance radiates the fields of both opera and motion pictures, will be in observance throughout the entire week at the Beacon Theatre, where the first showings of her new photoplay, "The Turn of the Wheel," will be given. In this play she will be seen in modern dress and its story concerns a young American woman sojourning at Monte Carlo who meets with a man playing for high stakes with resultant loss. Affection transpires, and the scene shifts to America where the drama strikes its heaviest notes. The character is said to be one which fits the best gifts of the queen of artistes. The other photoplay will be "His Birthright," picturing Sessue Hayakawa at the head of his own company.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE

The bills of vaudeville and photoplays announced for the week at the Codman Square Theatre assure that this popular Dorchester playhouse will be well patronized through the week. Leading the vaudeville the first half will be J. C. Mack, a popular leading figure in musical comedy, who with his company will present a musical comedy in miniature. Others on the bill will be Bert Baker and Company in the one-act comedy, "Preparations"; Early and Laight, in songs and comedy, and Ajax and Emilo in an athletic exhibition. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Missing," J. Stuart Blackton's production of Mrs. Humphrey Ward's famous story of incidents concerning the war.

LANCASTER THEATRE

The management of the Lancaster Theatre announce this as Paramount week with the screen offerings assaying 100 per cent. of productions with this brand. The first half the bill will contain Douglas Fairbanks in "Mr. Fix-It," in which the comedian has a series of his most ludicrous adventures as a citizen who bears others' worry burdens as a privilege, the while he wens a maiden in impetuous courtship. The other photoplay will be "Believe Me, Xantippe," picturing Wallace Reid.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Douglas Fairbanks will be one of the stars of the all-photoplay bill to be shown at the Columbia Theatre the first half of the week. He will be shown in his latest photoplay, "Bound in Morocco," wherein he transfers the scene of his athletic adventures from the customary West to the Far East. The other photoplay will be "Coals of Fire," picturing Enid Bennett. The Thursday change of bill will bring David W. Griffith's latest photoplay spectacle, "The Great Love," and "The Savage Woman," picturing Clara Kimball Young.

GLOBE THEATRE

The triple starred bill of photoplays to be shown at Loew's Globe Theatre promises unusual entertainment, in that variety which is the imperative demand of theatregoers is in evidence through the contrast of the separate offerings. Elsie Ferguson will be shown for the first time in "Heart of the Wilds," a photoplay which has been drawn from a play by Edgar Selwyn, and from a story by Sir Gilbert Parker. William S. Hart will be shown in his latest photoplay, "Riddle Gawne," and the comedy will be J. Montgomery Flagg's satire, "Hick Manhattan," with Peggy Hopkins in the leading role.

WALDRON'S CASINO

An attraction said to be one of the best to come to Boston this season will hold the boards at Waldron's Casino next week when Sam Howe's Big Show presents "The Butterflies of Broadway." This production is replete with elaborate scenery, an interesting and decidedly entertaining book, a plentitude of song hits, features, innovations and original bits.

COMING EVENTS

On Monday night, September 16, at the Tremont Theatre, Leo Ditrichstein will present his new play "The Matinee Hero," written by the talented actor himself in association with A. E. Thomas.

While Cohen and Harris, his managers, have with characteristic reticence refrained from announcing the plot or motif of the offering enough of the theme has been whispered along Broadway to indicate that in his portraiture of the stage hero Mr. Ditrichstein reveals a great deal of the life history of a prominent player who is at this time upon the top wave of popularity.

FENWAY THEATRE

Thereguler season opens at the Fenway on Labor Day with a series of the strongest attractions possible to include on one program. On the first three days of the week Irene Castle appears in "The First Law," the last but one of her series of photoplays, as she leaves in a few weeks for France to entertain the American boys in the huts back of the front line trenches. Antonio Moreno takes the leading male role.

PARAGON PARK AND PALM GARDEN

Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden complein another season with a triple holiday, today, tomorrow and Monday next, Labor Day. On Monday night next another season will be brought to a close in a blaze of glory, and Manager George A. Dodge, in celebration of the biggest season in the history of the park has provided many special attractions, not only for the holiday, but for today and tomorrow.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The special Labor Day attractions at Norumbega Park will provide a wealth of entertainment. In addition to the five big acts at the theatre every afternoon and evening, there will be a children's dancing carnival on September 3 at 2 p. m., in which over 200 boys and girls will participate, which will be a very pleasing sight.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Here's a howdy-do: The study of the pitching strength of the Cubs and Red Sox, in which I expected to reveal marked superiority for one or the other club, shows the two teams practically equal.

True, the Cubs have a big lead in straight pitching—the defensive part of the game—but that is overcome almost entirely by the hitting power of the Red Sox pitchers, who are about the most able citizens in baseball in that department.

True, also, it is the individual slugging ability of Babe Ruth and his inability to break up a game at any moment that gives the Red Sox their advantage in that department, an advantage not overcome to any great extent by the fact that Claude Hendrix can go some in the slugging line himself.

We find, now that the teams are to all intents and purposes evenly matched, Boston has the advantage in the outfield, Chicago holding a light edge in the infield and a big lead on catching, while Chicago has the edge on straight pitching, which is offset in a measure by the hitting of Ruth.

SAM JONES MAY START.

Boston, it would seem to almost everyone, would open with Sam Jones the chances are that Barrow will start with a right-hander, and he may send a surprise in Bullet Joe Jones.

He has learned to pitch, which is about all the change there is to Sam. He has an odd mixture of stuff which makes his fast ball appear faster than it is, and curs on top of you in a manner that is new to the leading players. His curve is just fair and his chief strength is found up his queer floating now ball with its unexpected speed.

Ruth, of course, depends largely upon his terrific power. He is a treemendous strong hitter at times and he has great speed and a cracking curve.

Bush has a tremendous fast ball and a curve, and Mays is the oddest freak pitcher of modern baseball. His chief reliance is an underhand fast ball which he can make to break in on a right-hander and away from a left-hander.

RUTH A GOOD CALLER.

Mays is a mysterious pitcher when he has control, but an easy mark when he understand ball is not breaking where he wants it to break.

He ought to be used in the games in which Ruth umpires behind the bat, because Ruth can set those low breaking fast balls better than anyone in the business, and if anyone will not give Mays the curves as account of the way his ball moves it's Vaughn, of course, as Mitchell's ace has been in other leagues for years, but recently began to take the game seriously.

Therefore, while not having the "stuff" Vaughn possesses, is going to be a factor problem for Ira Rice Sox. He has one of the nicest shows in the business, and he figures to stop Ruths and Hoppers better than even Vaughn.

One reason is that Dykes has pitched a lot of ball against the older members of the Red Sox and knows the team better than the other members do.

REFEREE HALTS "BROTHER ACT" BATTLE

The next time Al Girard and Charley Mitchell try to pull off an "brother act," they'd better try it with some other referee than Larry Gilmore on the job. Gorley knows the boxing game thoroughly and has that nerve to back his decisions. This was proved as the Commercial A. C. umpire he stopped the bout between Girard and Mitchell in the sixth round, declaring it "no contest."

The pair started to put up a tidy exhibition, but as they were there was no punch in their mitts. Girard was the first to hurt, Larry seeing that he warned him at the start of the fourth round to get busy. Girard came back with a punch, but in the sixth he shot out his right and left, but his attack ended when Mitchell ducked his chin and down went Charley for the count.

Girard claimed that Mitchell should be wanted to, but to let him get up. Another round, in the last one Mitchell settled to the ropes and when at made no effort to get in a counter punch. Gilmore stopped the fair.

The best bout of the night was the Velio-Middleman number, which ended in a haze for the latter in the seventh round. In the preliminary Meninen went down for the count, but was acted upon due to Vesio's punches.

Referee O'Brien had things pretty well with Sam Bell for ten rounds. Sam didn't have a Chinaman's chance. Jimmy McKenna defeated Kid Angel, and Johnny Marto such a drubbing that Crocker called a halt in the third round.

TRINITY A. C. OPENING PUT OVER FOR A WEEK

The opening show of the Trinity A. C., scheduled for Labor Day night, has been postponed one week by Matchmaker Wilfred Lemieux. A meeting this morning that Pat Owens has a cut over his eye that will keep him from doing his best, so he deemed it advisable to postpone the entire show one week. Instead of substituting Owens will be ready to go through with the mates one week from Monday.

ROBSON SCORES WIN OVER BATTLING KOPIN

Tommy Robson of Malden won the decision from Battling Kopin of the United States Navy in the tenth round of a twelve-round bout at the Crescent A. A., Lowell. Frank Mellen beat Johnny Burns in the semi-final. Young Lourneo of Lowell scored a victory over Young Toronto of Dorchester.

TRIS SPEAKER ON DUTY FOR WIND-UP OF RACE

Tris Speaker's suspension was lifted by President Johnson of the American League, in advance of tonight's double-header between the Indians and Yankees. This will be the one safe one out of eight trips to the plate. Cobb didn't get to do so well, being stopped in a straight by Covaleskie and Bagby, who took turns letting him have it.

Niles and Wright Are Put Out of Singles' Tennis Tournament

Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 31—William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, and Robert Lindley Murray, California mater, moved up to the semi-final rounds with the indoor champion, Cadet S. Howard Voshell, in the national singles championship tennis tournament.

With defeat and elimination from the tournament within two points when play was resumed, Tilden came back strong and battled his way through an uphill fight to final victory over Walter Merrill Hall, the Middle states champion, in five sets, by the score of 5—6, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5, 6—1. It was easily the most spectacular and brilliant match of the tournament.

Murray won his place in the semi-finals by a victory over Nat W. Niles, of Boston, the Harvard Crescent Club of Boston. Niles forced the western to extend the match to five sets, the match going the full course of sets. The latter scores were 6—2, 2—6, 7—5, 3—6, 6—3.

Julius Kornacker, Jap champion, defeated Dr. Wrightt, former national champion, although the victory did not help the Jap in the semi-finals. He was to play Lyle K. Mahan today for the honor.

STAGG EXPECTS TO HAVE TEAM AS USUAL

Chicago, Aug. 31—Doubts as to whether or not football will be played by the larger colleges of the Middle West this Fall were removed by A. A. Stagg, noted football coach and athletic director of the University of Chicago, who said that the Maroons would have an eleven as usual, and that the other Big Ten and similar schools no doubt also would have representative teams.

Indiana University, among others, has been reported as questioning the advisability of indulging in the game if the war is won, but from the way Stagg talked it appeared as if he had never entertained the idea of abandoning football.

"Oh, yes," he replied, when asked if the Big Ten was to continue its gridiron schedules, "we are going ahead as usual.

"I don't think the eighteen to forty-five draft law will interfere with our student bodies, for I'm sure that the government has enlisted a number of colleges throughout the country. Chicago and other conference schools among them, as student training camps, and when our men must register for the draft they will be assigned to their own colleges for training until they are needed by the service.

"In this way the ordinary college functions will not be disturbed only in a minimum degree, and as being excellent recreation and diversion for spectators, football is a fine sport for training prospective soldiers, and for this reason I expect a greater number of the students will take an active interest in the game this Fall."

From this statement it appears as if the Maroons, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Purdue, Northwestern and Iowa will be battling each other on the gridiron again this Fall. The grade of football played by these teams in the previous years, as most of the players will have had the game on the gridiron in college play, but as all the schools will be so handicapped this feature will serve only to equalize the games.

BANNER AMATEUR GAME BOOKED FOR LABOR DAY

The Columbus avenue playgrounds will be the scene of a game between the Depot Quartermasters nine and East Boston All-Stars, Labor Day afternoon. The boys from Noddle Island will try hard to break the fast winning streak of the service men, who have been on the winning end and brought their season's record up to fifteen wins and two losses. The battery for the Quartermasters will be Searry or Wellington and Simons. An added attraction will be the horse running contest between Maher and Coogan, former Quartermaster and Boston Braves Road Gym assistant.

Ticket Revels in Soft Going and Annexes Feature at Spa

By ED CURLEY.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 31—Judging from the manner in which the folks hereabouts welcomed Ticket as he came rearing down the muddy stretch it made it appear as if all hands were there with tickets on Ticket.

Judging from the way his odds were battered down, quite a few figured he would turn the trick. Before the race Jack Goldsborough, trainer of Roamer and also this colt, didn't hesitate to forecast that Ticket would gather in the welcome lucre.

Robin Goodfellow, capably ridden by Freddie Williams, won the Stillwater Chase. New Haven was the choice, but the heavy impost and soft going killed his speed in the last half and Robin came along and nailed him in the final drive.

TWIN SUNDAY BILL FOR SERVICE TEAM

Tomorrow afternoon's game at Braves Field between the Hunting Training Station and Boston Base, promises to be one of the hardest fought battles in the Navy League's schedule to date.

This game will be the second in tomorrow's double-header. The first game will be between the men at headquarters in the Little Building and the Bumkin Island aggregation. The opening encounter will be staged at 1:30 o'clock, with the second game coming as soon thereafter as possible, presumably around 3:30 o'clock.

GIANTS AND DODGERS GO ROUTE IN 57 MINUTES

New York, Aug. 31—It took the Giants just 57 minutes to defeat the Dodgers on the Polo Grounds, 1-0, and the shortest game ever played in the National League. Perritt and Combs were the pitchers, with Mamaux a wild chuck of Fletcher and Compton's single netting the lone counter.

Wakefield Municipal Plants and High Tax Rate

Example of False and Misleading Propaganda Against Public Ownership

An esteemed correspondent has sent in to this office, with the query, "What has the AMERICAN to say to that?" a clipping that has been going the rounds of the corporation press quoting the chairman of the Wakefield assessors as authority for the statement that the town's rather high tax rate is due to its municipal water works and lighting plant, which "are so operated that they not only do not pay for themselves, but that the town is deprived of the tax revenue that would accrue to it if these plants were owned by private corporations."

The AMERICAN "has to say" to our correspondent that this is an excellent example of the false and misleading propaganda with which the private exploiters of our public utilities are vainly trying to stem the rising tide of the popular demand for public ownership—and to the Wakefield official, in the words of Prince Hal to Falstaff: "Mark, now, how a plain tale shall put you down!"

The sworn returns filed with the State Bureau of Statistics show that last year the Wakefield water department received in round numbers $43,000 in water rates, that its operating expenses were $18,000, and that the balance, besides caring for all fixed charges, including 5 per cent. for depreciation, enabled a net amount of some $4,000 to be used in extending the plant. In Wakefield, as elsewhere, the expenses of the water works are borne by the water users, and the only effect upon the tax rate is that under public ownership the water for fire protection and other public uses is supplied at lower rates than those exacted by private water companies.

As to the lighting plant, the case for public ownership is better still. The Wakefield municipal gas and electric plant has been a very profitable investment for the people of Wakefield, and the taxpayers, especially if they are also users of gas and electricity, are many thousands of dollars better off than they would have been if these public utilities had remained in the hands of private corporations the past four years. Here are the figures:

The town would indeed have received from the private corporations in the four years taxes to the amount of $18,966, but it would have had to PAY these same corporations $43,690 FOR STREET LIGHTING. So on this count the TAXPAYERS' NET GAIN from public ownership has been $24,724.

Furthermore, the town has sold its inhabitants gas at much lower rates than those exacted by private gas companies supplying communities where the conditions are like those in Wakefield, and the lighting plant has shown a clear operating profit of $13,000 at that, which profit would have been $40,219 if the corporation prices had been charged. Add to this sum the $24,724 saved on the street lighting account, and we have a gross saving of $59,187 to the town from public ownership of its lighting plant. Taking from this gross profit the $19,826 which the taxpayers have contributed for interest and depreciation, we have left a NET GAIN TO THE TAXPAYERS of $39,361, or in round numbers $10,000 a year, from the municipal ownership and operation of this one public utility.

As a sidelight on the comparative economy of public and private operation, it may be noted in passing that if the Wakefield municipal plant had charged Edison prices for the electricity which it sold it would have cleared 40 per cent. on the capital invested, whereas the Edison company shows only a profit of 8 per cent. on its capitalization.

Evidently it is up to the chairman of the Wakefield assessors to discover—or invent—some more plausible explanation of Wakefield's high tax rate.

General Pershing and Moral Forces Guarding the Army

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Among the foremost of the splendid things that our war machine is doing for the young men of America is the careful scrutiny and protection given to the morals of the camp.

The entire machinery of the departments is exerted in this protecting care—not puritanical and drastic, but persuasive and uplifting in its execution. The physical and moral welfare of an American soldier are more rigorously inspected and conserved in every American camp than they are in the municipal centres at home.

General Pershing has just issued an address to the army in France which is almost paternal in its tone of counsel and direction to the men, "urging continence and morality as the plain duty of every member of the American Expeditionary Force, both for the vigorous conduct of the war and for the clean health of the American people after the war."

Commanding officers are instructed for keen inspection and control of moral cleanliness, urging severity in dealing with infected men and making all immoral resorts "off limits" for the men.

Secretary Daniels led this great movement of protection for the young men of the navy in the beginning of the war and wrought a wholesome revolution by his orders.

Secretary Baker has been equally watchful and vigorous for the army.

The superb work of the Y. M. C. A. has endeared that great organization to every mother and father in the republic.

The Knights of Columbus have been a splendid influence in the camps.

The Jewish Relief Clubs have carefully guarded their people, and the thousands of chaplains and priests and "sisters" have been a potent force for good among the American soldiers so far away from home.

It is a consolation and an inspiration to the millions of American homes which have given freely their "jewels" to the Great Cause to realize that home care and home teaching and home influence, so far as it is humanly possible, is given to their sons in France and Italy.

It is a glorious race of men that is to come back to us when this mighty war is done.

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

In Which He Tells of How Dull We Would Be in One-Color Light

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Will you kindly explain the blending of colors? At a vaudeville show I saw a man with a green coat under a white spotlight. The light was changed to red and the coat turned to purple. Then when a purple light was turned on the coat became black. M. N. D."

FEW ever reflect what a dull, monotonous, ugly world ours would be if we had only monochromatic, or one-color, light. There are in the heavens red stars and blue stars, and I have heard some persons say: "Oh, how delightful it would be to live in the light of a ruby or a sapphire sun!"

But it would be anything but delightful to an inhabitant of this earth who happened to be translated to such a place. He would miss all the splendor of the contrasted colors, and the shifting and changing hues to which he is accustomed here.

He would never see a rainbow. He would never catch the prismatic gleam of a dewdrop in the sunshine. The Autumn trees would never put on their robes of russet, scarlet, crimson and gold for him. A tree clothed by a Winter sleet storm in a suit of crystal would not look, as Mark Twain described it, "like the Shah of Persia's diamond plume."

All One Color

The flowers in his garden would be all of one color or else all black. They would have no chance to select among the waves of light the colors that best suited them, rejecting those while absorbing and thus concealing the others.

It is probable that there are only three really independent colors in sunlight, but it has not been finally decided just what they are. Formerly it was supposed that they were red, yellow and blue; then that they were red, green and violet, but another opinion is that they are red, green and blue.

A glass prism separates white sunlight into a band of seven distinguishable colors, called the spectrum. These seven are, in order, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet, and they always stand in that order of succession, the red being produced by the longest light waves and the violet by the shortest.

Waves longer than those making the sensation of red, and shorter than those making the sensation of violet, are indistinguishable to the sense of sight although they produce other recognizable effects. But several of the seven spectrum colors are evidently compounds, only three, as already said, being independent or fundamental.

Have No Color

The light waves have, in themselves, no color, just as the sound waves have, in themselves, no notes. A great painting is a color symphony. On the other hand, some persons associate sounds with colors, and an exquisite piece of music is for them almost a visible melody.

MRS. WOODROW'S ARTICLE

She Writes of Woman Made Miserable by Continual Fault Finding

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

A WOMAN has written me a long letter asking me to explain why a certain fate has seemed to pursue her through life. She says in effect that since childhood she has, as it were, been carefully "censored." In other words, her life has been made miserable by constant fault-finding and criticism from those most closely associated with her.

Under Influence

At first it was an older sister who tyrannized over her unmercifully. She had a brief respite when she went to school, and there found herself in a much more congenial atmosphere. Her natural gayety of temperament asserted itself and she made many friends. But when she invited them to her home, Older Sister resented it and made her disapproval of them felt. She made sarcastic comments on their dress, their manners and conversation, and treated them with such supercilious condescension that they were careful not to repeat their visits.

The mother, who was completely under the influence of Older Sister, refused to interfere, and poor little Cinderella was gradually ignored by those to whom she had become attached. She was rich in money, in youth, in health and good looks; yet very poor in friends and companions.

The situation became worse as she became older and attracted suitors. Then Older Sister, who must have been a frightful character, cut loose. She was so frankly rude that it took more courage than most suitors possessed to continue their attentions.

There was one, however, who seemed positively to enjoy bandying sarcasms with her. He came again and again, quite undaunted by Sister's vile manners. And the heroine of this true story was so thrilled by his courage that she married him.

Here all should have ended happily. But that is stern realism, not romance. The poor lady writes that she had been married but a short time when she discovered that Husband was only a masculine replica of Older Sister, and that in this case, anyway, the female of the species was not more deadly than the male.

Finally Died

He criticized everything she did and everything she said. He condemned her for all the things she didn't do and didn't say. If I can judge by her letter, the poor soul never knew which were the greater, her sins of omission or her sins of commission.

In fact, it would appear that if Older Sister were a talented nagger, Husband soared far above her and proved himself a genius in that line.

Finally he died, but he left his unfortunate wife a legacy in the shape of an invalid mother-in-law, from whom he evidently inherited his powers of flinging verbal vitriol.

LITTLE SOLDIER MEN

By Thomas P. Bashaw

LITTLE soldier men wake up at early dawn,
Little feller grabs 'em up 'fore his clothes are on,
Carries 'em to breakfast tables, gets his milk and rice,
Cautions Mr. General to "make 'em stand up nice."

Little soldier men most all the live-long day
Standin' up an' tumblin' over right in mother's way;
Little feller's sad when daddy steps on one,
Knocks a leg or arm loose or smashes off a gun.

Little soldier men obey his last command,
Privates an' corp'rals an' leader of the band;
If they tumble over in little feller's war,
He'll put 'em in the guardhouse—an old tobacco jar.

Little soldier men, when comp'ny comes to eat,
Always on parade, in line, an' standin' neat;
Little feller says they b'long to Uncle Sam,
"Trainin' to fight Germans," an' give the foe a slam.

Little soldier men, when night begins to fall,
Go to bed with little feller, guns an' tent an' all.
Kneelin' down to say his prayers, as little fellers do,
"God bless dad and mother—and bless the soldiers, too."

Songs Take No Gasoline

Best Collection of War Songs Yet in Tomorrow's Boston Sunday ADVERTISER and AMERICAN—Heir to Back Bay Wealth Is Hero in Made-in-Boston Romance of Love and War—Girls With the Hoe at Vassar—Anna Held's Awakening From Death—Agonies of Armenian Maidenhood in the Clutch of Turks—Early Fall Dresses by Lady Duff-Gordon

"Auto-less Sunday" tomorrow. Why not sing?

As long as you are not taking the car out tomorrow—conserving gasoline, you know—there is all the more chance to try more of those new war songs.

By good fortune, too, tomorrow's war song collection is one of the best yet. One of them, "My Angel of the Flaming Cross," starts a new series of them illustrated by America's most famous artists. Howard Chandler Christy has provided a page drawing in colors for "My Angel of the Flaming Cross."

Among the other songs, with complete choruses, which are offered tomorrow are:

"Over the Top With the Best of Luck," "America Victorious," "Good-bye, Mother; So Long, Dad; Hello, Uncle Sam," "You've Been Your Mother's Baby Long Enough" and "It's Only the End of a Romance for You."

Once upon a time——

And right in Boston, too.

The boy and girl were at a Back Bay home of wealth. He was heir to the millions of two Boston families. She was the petted child of Philadelphia riches.

They became sweethearts at first sight. But she had a "when."

"When I become a Broadway star," she said, "and you become a soldier-hero."

A childish dream. But it has come to pass. On the day she became a Broadway star he was decorated in France for bravery in the world war. That was only the other day.

The whole story, with pictures, is one of the page features in tomorrow's issue of the Boston Sunday ADVERTISER and AMERICAN.

Every girl will wish to see HIS picture. Every man will wish to see her picture. And everybody will be entranced by the sweet story of childish ambitions fulfilled and the love of man and maid.

The tragedy of poor Anna Held still holds public attention. Science explains in tomorrow's ADVERTISER and AMERICAN the famous actress' awakening from two hours of death. It is a mystery of suspended animation.

The incredible sufferings of Armenian women and girls at the hands of cruel Turks and Kurds are recounted in detail in the new instalment of Aurora Mardiganian's personal story: "My Two Years of Torture in Ravished, Martyred Armenia." This two-page article is illustrated by convincing photographs.

The famous "Daisy Chain" of fair maids at Vassar College has given way to a chain of the same maids swinging the hoe. In other words, this great college for girls has been turned into a school for useful war work. There are pictures of the college girls hoeing, driving the plough and actually running a steam tractor.

"The Enchanted Hour," Gil Patten's absorbing fiction story of love, romance and the great way, continues its soul-stirring way.

Madame will wear her belt this Fall many inches larger than her normal waist line. So says Lady Duff-Gordon in her timely, full-page article on "Early Fall Dresses."

Likewise she gives many other interesting points about the coming styles.

Effect the War Will Have on Our Schools

By John F. Engle

PROPHECY relating to the future based upon the past is fraught with perils and uncertainties. These larger movements that dominate human history operate very much like elemental forces in nature. We know that imperious necessities in the present will seek their gratification in the near future; we cannot, however, forecast in the future the trend of any great movement operating in the present.

That the war will bring momentous changes in our public school system goes without saying. I venture to forecast a few of these readjustments: Physical education will in all probability take its place alongside mathematics and English. Play has its justification in psychological effects; physical education is strenuous and develops muscle and bodily poise.

Formal Discipline

The discarded doctrine of formal discipline will probably find its way back into intellectual education along the pathway of physical training. We shall have muscle training for its own sake; and then soon mental training for its own sake. After the war we shall have soon larger frames, stronger muscles and better stomachs than before the war.

The slogan heard during the war that "food will win the war" will, after the war, stimulate the proper feeding of human beings, and encourage an intensive study of food values. An adult who has been properly fed from the day of his birth can hardly ever be sick. The home economics now in our high schools is only a drop in the bucket. After the war, if wisdom presides in our councils, we shall place food studies in our schools on the same basis as English.

Old Order Dies

From time to time the world comes to an end, and there comes into existence a new heaven and a new earth. We are now witnessing the death of an old order and soon we shall see the birth of a new. In this new order the United States will be as a house that is set on a hill. The east and the west will mingle within our confines. Our merchant marine will be seen on every ocean and in every navigable river. We will have become over night a world power.

Sudden emergencies demand quick and energetic action. In order to master our wider relations, and to meet our more extensive acquaintances, we must study and master modern languages. French and Italian must be studied for both commercial and cultural reasons. Spanish and Portuguese are necessary from a commercial standpoint; while even Chinese and Japanese will, from a commercial standpoint, loom larger as the decades go by. We must become a people of many tongues, so that we may communicate with the diverse peoples of the earth.
